ITALIANS PUSH GREEKS BACK

ATHENS, Oct. 30 (AP)—Italy's invading legions thrust a heavy attack into the western sector of Greece's stubborn defenses today, apparently driving for Ioanninna (Janina), 30 miles from the frontier and about the same distance from the coast.

Neutral military quarters said the Greeks were resisting strongly, although the advance guards who faced the border at the outbreak of hostilities were slowly retiring to the main defense lines in accordance with a pre-conceived plan.

The fighting was the heaviest since Italy attempted invasion, they said, and heavy artillery thundered throughout the night on the low flank of the battle line in northwestern Greece.

A Rome radio broadcast that the Italians had driven 40 miles into Greek territory, capturing the town of Saint Nicholas—Editor's note.

The Greek high command strengthening its defense positions with reservists streaming north by train and truck, said in a communique early today that the Italians were striking with heavy force across the Albanian frontier in the Epirus district.

Heavy artillery and light Italian mountain guns were reported hammering at Greece's front line there in the rugged uplands which Aristotle described as the original home of the ancient Hellenes.

Of Greek resistance there the high command disclosed only that "our movements are carried out on the basis of pre-arranged plans."

The defense of the Greek-Albanian frontier in Epirus has been planned since the Italians occupied Albania in April, 1939, and Premier John Metaxas started the building of the secret strong points of the "Mastax Line."

The high command declared "the situation remains unchanged" along the upper half of the border battlefront—in western Macedonia from where Alexander the Great marched to the conquest of ancient Persia.

GUARD SALONIKA
The defenses there, where the Greek reports indicated the attack was less severe, guard the 100-mile route to Salonika, upper Aegean guardian of road and rail routes through Thrace to Turkey and the Dardanelles.

(Italian reports claimed advances in the direction of Florina and Salonika on this front—Editor's Note.)

So far, the high command said, "enemy aviation activity has been very light," although several Greek towns, mostly ports, have been bombed.

LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT... AND A REPLY

CRIMINAL DIVISION
JUN 19 1940
RECEIVED
June 14, 1940

Dear Mr. President:

Will you permit me to express my sincere regret for much of the substance of your recent radio address and that delivered at the University of Virginia.

I have voted for you twice, as in sympathy with your humanitarian and social objectives, as well as sharing your sympathy with the allies in their struggle. But the tone of both addresses seems to me calculated to build up a psychosis which may drive us into a war in which we could be of little help to Europe, but in which we might lose our own liberty as well as the lives of our youth.

Believe me with great respect,

Sincerely yours,
Elizabeth Fain

(Mrs. William H. Fain)

CRIM. DIV. FILE
The President,
The White House,

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
WASHINGTON, D. C.
August 22, 1940.

Mrs. William Hugh Fain,
Rosedale Hill Road,
Greenwich, Connecticut.

Dear Madam:

In reply to your letter of June 14, 1940, by reference from the President, concerning your views of the war in Europe, please be advised that the statements contained therein have been carefully noted by the Department.

Respectfully,

For the Attorney General,

O. John Rogge
Assistant Attorney General.

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT'S ANSWER—The letter shown at the left, criticizing two of F. D.'s speeches, was sent to him last June by Mrs. William H. Fain of Greenwich, Ct., and received the reply reproduced at the right... from the Department of Justice. Rep. Bruce Barton, G. O. P. candidate for U. S. Senator from New York, cited this to charge New Deal Gestapo threat.

Justice Men Get Protest

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP)—Some New York morning newspapers printed today reproductions of what was purported to be correspondence addressed to President Roosevelt protesting the "tone" of his Charlottesville, Va., address and another speech and an acknowledgment from the Department of Justice.

The correspondence was mentioned last night by Bruce Barton, Republican candidate for the United States Senate, in a radio address.

Barton declared that the letter to the President was written by Mrs. William H. Fain, Greenwich, Ct., and that a reply had been received from O. John Rogge, assistant attorney-general, saying statements in the letter had been "carefully noted by the department."

In the reproduction of the letter, Mrs. Fain told the President, in part:

"I have voted for you twice, as in sympathy with your humanitarian and social objectives, as well as sharing your sympathy with the allies in their struggle. But the tone of both addresses seems to me calculated to build up a psychosis which may drive us into a war in which we could be of little help to Europe, but in which we might lose our own liberty as well as the lives of our youth."

The letter, dated June 14, closed with the line: "Believe me with great respect." Barton said that Mrs. Fain received from the Department of Justice a photostatic copy of her letter, when she requested it later to refresh her memory of what she had written, and that it bore a stamp which said "Criminal Division."

"There, my fellow-Americans," Barton said, "is something to make our ancestors turn over in their graves. Little did they think that the country which they dedicated to freedom would ever reach a point where a copyrighted worded criticism from a woman to her President would cause that citizen to be recorded in the Department of Justice."

FEAR ITSELF, ONLY U.S. FEAR, F. D. SAYS ON WAY TO HUB

By JAMES F. McENANEY

WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT EN ROUTE TO BOSTON, Oct. 30—Riding through a driving rain in his invasion of New England today, President Roosevelt repeated to drrenched Connecticut crowds that, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

The President, enroute to Boston for his speech at Boston Garden tonight, declared:

"All this talk about sending American boys to Europe just doesn't fit in with the facts of the past or the facts of the future."

The Chief Executive told a New Haven crowd that his final campaign swing through New England had been in doubt as late as yesterday, owing to the Italian invasion of Greece.

"But you will notice that in all these war developments the United States has managed to keep clear and not get into war," he said.

MUST HAVE TRAINED MEN

Referring to the draft lottery, he emphasized that in addition to machines and munitions in national defense, it is necessary to have trained men.

"Not that we intend to use them," he declared. "An army of 800,000 American youths is to be given a year's training for the same reason you are using umbrellas today—so as not to get wet."

Striking directly at his Republican opponent, Wendell Willkie, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"It is a pity that the element of fear has to be injected into a national campaign, fear of things that do not exist. The only thing we have to fear in America today is fear itself."

President Roosevelt appeared on the rear platform of his train in New Haven in company with Senator Francis T. Maloney, who is running for re-election in Connecticut.

The Presidential special train made a special stop at Maloney's home town, Meriden, Ct.

LAUDS DEFENSE WORK

At Meriden, the President said: "I want to see more of the work you people of Connecticut are doing for national defense. I'm proud of it."

Crowds were out along the tracks at Wallingford, Ct., but the presidential train only slowed down and did not stop.

His train halted at Hartford, for an appearance of the President at Bushnell Park. He then proceeded by train to the United Aircraft Corp. plant at East Hartford and then to the Massachusetts state line.

Fifty Massachusetts state troopers, in command of Public Safety Commissioner Eugene M. McSwiney,

Brighton, Southie 6-6 in First Period

By SAM BROGNA

NATIONAL LEAGUE FIELD, Oct. 29.—South Boston high and Brighton high, both undefeated and both with their eyes on the district championship, bumped into each other here today in the feature game of a City of Boston football doubleheader. Jamaica Plain and Charlestown met in the nightcap.

FIRST PERIOD

Brighton won the toss and elected to receive but could do little until midway in the period, when Brighton took the ball on their own 40. Cuggino made two yards. An offside gave Brighton five yards and Bradbury ran the end to the South Boston 45.

Coughlin lost five yards on the next play and then Bradbury went to the 35. Coughlin carried to the 25 from which point he threw a touchdown pass to Coughlin.

Bradbury's kick for the extra point was wide.

Score—Brighton 6, So. Boston 0. The kickoff was downed on the 25, and Dubovy then raced 75 yards to score standing up. He eluded several would-be tacklers and outran the last man in his path. South Boston attempted to get the extra point by rushing but it failed.

Score—So. Boston 6, Brighton 6.

WEYMOUTH ENJOYING BEST YEAR

Coach Harry Arlanson has turned out some excellent football teams at Weymouth High, but this current edition seems destined to finish the season perched on the top rung of the Class C ladder.

Last Saturday's contest with a Class B Quincy squad marked Weymouth's sixth straight win of the campaign. Two of these wins were against better rated Class B clubs, namely Brookline and Quincy, both by a two-touchdown margin.

SCORED 121 POINTS

To date Weymouth has already taken the measure of Swampscott, Newwood, Belmont, No. Quincy, Brookline and Quincy. The Weymouthites have amassed 121 points this season against a mere 20 scored by their opponents.

Co-Captain George Delorey, ripple threat halfback, has been the main spark in Arlanson's attack. Delorey weighs but 152 pounds and makes up for his lack of weight by a powerful pair of legs, ability to run, and to cut without lost motion.

The blocker is Warren "Hop" McKinnon, 150 pounds of muscle and lining. Besides Delorey in the other halfback slot is Jim Wheeler, a 154-pound forward passer.

Frank Cavallo is the only Sophomore holding down a first-team berth, and also is the heaviest boy in the backfield. Cavallo is the team strategist and line bucker and serves very proficiently in both capacities.

DRAKE TOPS ON SCALES

Parker Bates, although listed as a left end, has been very instrumental to date as a ball totter. Bates carries the leather on a very mystifying end around reverse. This play has completely baffled the opposition, and therefore, has been good for a first down almost every shot. On the other wing is Bill Connell at 155, a very capable pass receiver as well as a steady defensive end.

Co-Capt. Dom Nista is the big cog in the Weymouth line serving at left tackle. At the other tackle is Don Drake, 183 pounds, heaviest boy on the squad. Jim Panetta, 165, is firmly entrenched in the pivot slot. On his right is Bill Pizzi a 142 pounder, and on the left of Panetta is Alphonse Bakish at 155. Coach Arlanson is grooming his charges for their game with Braintree this Saturday.

Geraghties Play Scarlets and Whites

The Geraghty Club of Roxbury and the Scarlet and White Club of Dorchester will meet on the Dorchester Town Field tonight at 6:30.

Kaplan Drubs Aron, Wants Hub Zivic Go

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29 (AP)—Young Mike Kaplan of Dorchester, Mass., bounced into a leading role today in the welterweight title chase with a clean-cut decision over Chicago's Mill Aron and the assertion that he's ready to fight Champion Fritz Zivic "at any time."

With Zivic looking on from the ringside, the baby-faced Bostonian contested to a 10-round decision before 4500 at Convention Hall last night.

Weighing 145 to Aron's 149 Kaplan kept boring in and scored often with a left jab and right cross.

He cut Aron's chin in the fourth, opened a cut over the eyebrow in the fifth, and in the eighth knocked the Chicagoan down for a two count.

Altogether Kaplan won eight rounds, Aron one (the fourth), with one (the sixth) even.

In his dressing room Kaplan said he was ready to fight Zivic "at any time," perhaps in December, at Boston.

"I felt very tough out there," he said. "I could have gone 15 rounds if necessary. Only in the fourth did he hurt me. Then he hit me on the ear. That stung." The fight was a return meeting. The two fought a draw here last summer.

Level Best to Race In Empire Stake

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (AP)—Trainer J. P. Jones will ship Crispin Ogilby's Level Best from Maryland to run in the $7500 added Autumn Day Stakes for two-year-old fillies at Empire City Saturday. Level Best won the Demoselle Stakes at the Yonkers track last summer.

Tufts, N. U. Top Small Colleges' Football Card

New England's outstanding small college game takes place right here in Boston next Saturday afternoon when Northeastern and Tufts, inter-city rivals, battle it out at Kent Field.

The two teams fought 60 minutes to a scoreless deadlock last fall and shape up as just about on a par for Saturday's affair.

Lew Manly's Jumbies have a slight edge in that they will be in perfect shape for the affair while the Huskies took a terrific physical beating at Upsala last Saturday winding up with five concussions.

Up in Maine, the second chapter of the Pine Tree State title battle will be unfolded with Colby visiting Maine and Bowdoin visiting Bates. These two games should 20 a long way in deciding the eventual winner. Colby and Bowdoin tied last week while Bates edged Maine by a point. If Bates can take Bowdoin, the Bobcats stand a chance of winning their first title in 10 years.

Maine is in a tough spot for the University must beat Colby or face elimination. If the Mice win, Fred Brier's gang will have two defeats which will automatically eliminate them.

The Little Three have rather a light week-end. Amherst tangles with Mass State for the town of Amherst championship but the state team is so weak an Amherst loss would be a major upset. Wesleyan will find Coast Guard just strong enough for a tightener while Williams meets Union, a team that is considerably below last year's level.

Up at Manchester, St. Anselm and New Hampshire will fight it out for the small school title in that state. The Hawks have won out for the last four years but the Wildcats may have just enough this fall to spring an upset.

Behind Goal Posts

Tom Harmon is leading Michigan on a rampage but they'll never be able to equal the Michigan teams of 1901-05, coached by Fielding Yost. Captain White's point-a-minute men of 1901 rolled up 530 points in 11 games and held the opposition scoreless. In '02 the Wolverine Limited tallied 644 points, massacring Michigan State, 119-0; and Iowa, 107-0. . . only Minnesota was able to score on the '03 outfit, gaining a 6-6 tie, sole blemish on an otherwise spotless record from 1901-04. . . in 1905 a Yost eleven finally met defeat at the hands of Chicago after whitewashing 12 opponents during the season. . . a Michigan safety gave Chicago its 2-0 win. COLLEGE FOOTBALL coaches are more to blame than their young players for some of the mistakes made during major games. I have frequently felt that the master minds who direct boys between the ages of 18 and 22 in the noble game of football try to cram too much knowledge about the game into the heads of their charges. This accounts for some of the brain storms the youthful players occasionally have in the merry chase for victory for dear old alma mater.

As football has become a wide open game, the number of plays have been greatly increased. The players are given numerous offensive and defensive plays, and if they use them properly they are told by their coaches that they are certain to win.

There is not much left to the decision of the youngsters who take the smashes on the gridiron. Each situation calls for a particular play. The players are supposed to put these combinations into execution in flawless fashion.

With dozens of possible plays to be used, it is natural that young players frequently get confused during the excitement of a game and make the wrong move. This is particularly true when a college eleven is composed chiefly of sophomores and juniors. A team that is fortunate to have five to six seniors in its lineup is not so likely to make mistakes. There is usually a veteran who keeps his feet on the ground, and who will step to the front if the signal caller or anyone else starts to use the wrong play.

The coaches could correct the situation by making their plays more simple, and eliminating combinations which they have found through experience that their players are unable to master.

There are, of course, the super stars like Tommy Harmon and Frank Reagan, who not only can remember all of the plays they have been taught, but who are using new combinations which they make up on the spur of the moment when faced by some extraordinary situation.

How Knute Rockne Taught His Players

JUDGE LEO LEARY once told me how Knute Rockne's Notre Dame players mastered the difficult plays that enabled them to become famous.

"Rock was attending the Harvard Summer school and he showed me some of the plays he was going to use at Notre Dame in the fall," said Judge Leary. "He asked me what I thought of the plays."

"The plays are all right," I told Rock, "but I think they are so complicated that your boys will not have time to master them for their big games."

"Rock laughed good naturedly.

"Out at South Bend, Rock said, 'the boys worked on these plays all through last winter and during the spring. They used pillows for footballs as they ran through the new combinations in their dormitories.'"

"I told Rock that under those conditions it was a different story. I believe, though, you can give too many difficult plays to a team that is going to be in training for less than three months. Most college football players do not take the game on an all year diet as they do at Notre Dame."

I believe this story explains why it is unwise to expect too much of young players who have other things to do other than play football.

Many College Coaches in Cry Baby Class

I GAVE THE Cleveland Indians the name "cry babies" when they asked that Oscar Vitt be removed as manager, and it was quickly taken up by sports writers throughout the country. I now believe the name "cry babies" would be more fitting for some of our college football coaches. Incidentally Vitt has finally been fired by Cleveland.

These college coaches receive salaries from $5,000 to $15,000 for a three months season, and when something goes wrong in one of their games they place the finger on a boy who is risking serious physical injury without any compensation. I wish these coaches were permitted to take part in games. They then would not be able to sit back as second guessers, and they would not look so good.

As long as college football players are not paid and take part in football for the fun of it, they should not be taken apart by alibi coaches because they make mistakes. When a team wins, the coach is usually willing to take the bows. Let him also accept the blame when things go wrong, and not try to place it on the shoulders of some boy who gives everything he has in the way of athletic ability in return for a few cheers.

DAVE WILSON picked Rollsbuzzzy to win, and the $27.20 payoff gave cheer to his followers. . . . Dave says that in his figures Rollsbuzzzy had the edge on the field. . . . In his previous race, Wilson said, Rollsbuzzzy was a bit short. . . . Dave felt that Rollsbuzzzy benefited from the earlier race.

Clocks won to pay $3.00. . . . The first wager on this odds-on favorite was $500 in the show pool. . . . The show price was $2.20. . . . It looked like a soft spot to the big show better. . . . At that Clocks barely held on long enough to beat out Whisper who finished with a roar.

JUDGE LEO H. LEARY

Scrimmage 'Must'

Harden B.C. Leahy Aim

By BILL GRIMES

It has been more than a fortnight since Boston College has had any incentive to put its best foot forward.

For a college seeking national rating that is a serious condition. And the Eagles are very much in the fight for country-wide fame.

Boston College has played five games. Three were push-overs. The Eagles will receive credit for their wins over Tulane and Temple. They'll derive nothing from their one-sided games with Centre, Idaho and St. Anselm.

As a result of the B. C. schedule, Head Coach Frank Leahy finds it mandatory to hold an hour's scrimmage between his first and second teams tomorrow afternoon.

Here it is practically the 1st of November and Boston College has put on an intra-squad game to round its players into shape for the Manhattan Jaspers.

PLAYERS GONE SOFT

"I'm glad we've got Manhattan to play before meeting Auburn, Georgetown and Holy Cross," declared Frank Leahy. "The Jaspers are a better club than most of the football fans realize. They're smart, tricky and rugged."

"In our games with Centre and Idaho, and yes, even on Saturday, we didn't put enough power into our blocking. And, I'm worried. I can't blame my boys. They were trying to be as easy as possible on weaker opponents. But, unless they put everything they have in their blocking from here on, Boston College will never go through undefeated.

SCRIMMAGE TELLS STORY

Against Manhattan, Auburn, Georgetown and Holy Cross, the Eagles must block and block hard on every play. If they are under the impression that they can clean out their future opponents without any more effort than was required to flatten Centre, Idaho and St. Anselm, the Eagles will have their Christmas dinners at home and listen to, instead of play, a bowl game.

"I firmly believe that Boston College has softened up since the Temple game. Possibly, I'm wrong. I'll find out tomorrow afternoon by staging an hour's scrimmage between the first and second teams."

"I've hesitated to order this practice game, but I feel that I must. I'm afraid to send the Eagles against Manhattan without a stiff workout. And, it will be stiff, for we'll drive our boys at top speed during the entire workout."

JASPERS COME FIRST

"What do you hear from Scout McKeever about Georgetown?" we interrupted.

"Not a word," replied Leahy. "I've enough worries now, with Manhattan coming up."

Under the circumstances, Frank Leahy is well within his rights to worry over the Jaspers of Manhattan. Herbie Kopf's Jaspers gave Gus Dorais' University of Detroit squad a battle to the final whistle.

They went down to a 6 to 0 defeat before a club which Coach Dorais admits is the best he has had in three years. Then, they were nosed out 10 to 6 by Duquesne.

A year ago, Manhattan opened the season with Holy Cross at Worcester. Although on the short end of a 0 to 28 game, the Jaspers gave the Crusaders a much stiffer battle than the score indicates.

In fact, the truth of the matter is that Holy Cross wasn't even two, let alone four, touchdowns better than Manhattan that afternoon.

Don't underestimate the Jaspers. Boston College, or you'll be in the weeping room with Fordham.

Referee Side-Steps Ohio State Charge

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 29 (INS)—L. W. St. John, athletic director at Ohio State University, said today he had protested to Referee W. H. "Red" Friesell BEFORE the Cornell-Ohio State game Saturday regarding Coach Carl Snavely's alleged signal calling from mth big red bench.

"It was reported through scouts and other mediums that Snavely was directing play from the bench and accordingly we made a pre-game protest," St. John revealed.

"Coach Francis Schmidt," the athletic director asserted, "spoke to the officials, including Friesell, but of course it was difficult for them to officiate the game and also watch the Cornell bench."

St. John made formal protest of Snavely's alleged actions in a letter to Asa S. Bushnell, executive director of the Eastern Intercollegiate Association.

A copy of the letter was sent to James Lynch, athletic director at Cornell.

He charged that Snavely manipulated a white cylinder to signal his quarterback what plays to call.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 29 (INS)—W. H. "Red" Friesell, the man who refereed the game between Ohio State and Cornell last Saturday when Coach Carl Snavely allegedly signalled his team from the bench, was on record today with the announcement that no protest had been made either during or after the game. (Ed. note—The protest was made before the game) Ohio State charges.

"We're out there to run the game and too busy watching 22 players to pay much attention to what transpires on the benches," he said.

"We're too busy out there on the field to do any patrolling of the sidelines, but had the Ohio State coach made a complaint, we would have looked into the matter."

Harvard Plays Wheaton Girls

Harvard and Wheaton College girls of Norton were to face each other this afternoon in an important athletic contest at the feminine institution. Harvard's newly formed field hockey team, after a week's practice, was challenged the fair sex to a contest to prove the Harvard's cars at least hold their own in a field hockey game.

The Crimson team was represented by Mike Brady, Don Peddie, Dave Stearns, Fran Simpson, Nat Young, and any others who could spare the afternoon. Don Peddie, the captain, has announced that there would be no return contest regardless of the outcome of this afternoon's game.

Sullivan Wins Title In 175's

Tommy Sullivan, South Boston's hard-hitting 175-pounder, packed too much experience and hitting ability for Billy Fitzpatrick of Arlington and defeated the latter in three torrid rounds, to capture a Golden Glove championship, before 4500 at the Arena last night.

Unintentionally guilty of low punching, Sullivan was warned by Referee Eddie Bradley twice in the first round. His tactics enraged Fitzpatrick and at the bell the Arlington lad elected to throw punches during the minute's respite but was held back by his handlers.

In the second and third rounds, Sullivan proved his superiority, rocking Fitzpatrick from head to toe with solid thumps to the chin and body, to win a unanimous decision.

HIT DECK IN FIRST

Sal Cesario, hard-punching mid-deweight, ran into a game but out-classed opponent in Jack Kearney of Brookline in the middleweight final.

Rushing out in his customary fashion, Cesario dropped Kearney to the deck with his first punch, but Jack was far from through. He got up and traded punches toe to toe and only backed away when forced to by the sheer power of Cesario's punches.

The decision was unanimous for Cesario, when he piled up a large margin in the closing minutes of battle.

Joe Landry, a gosh-all-mighty from Gardner, a brave champion and heavily favored Eddie DeAngelo's Revere, a hectic scare as well as a few hefty wallops in the bantam-weight finals.

Cool and collected, DeAngelo was boxing along in masterful fashion, when suddenly Landry uncoiled one from his unorthodox stance midway through the second round and the confused Revere boy leaped in and hung on for dear life.

Landry attempted to force the issue in the third round, but Eddie was steaming mad, and peppered the Gardner gamester with sharp left hooks, followed through with hard right hand punches and punched his way to a split decision.

Steve Kronis, featherweight port-sider, rocked Vincent Doyle of Jamaica Plain to sleep in one minute and 30 seconds of the first round in his semifinal encounter.

WINS TITLE BY DEFAULT

Kronis, incidentally, did not have to battle in the finals to win his Golden Glove crown, Jackie Reed defaulting to him due to a gash received under his eye while winning his semifinal engagement.

This was also the case in the heavyweight division, John Pretzie, after battling to a close win over Esterio Cimenno of Providence, discovered he had broken his right hand and Howard Thompson of Saugus was awarded the title.

Probably the best fighter in the welterweight division, Mike Cozza, Haverhill, clowned his way out of the championship, losing to determined Davy Andrews of Lowell in his final fight.

Despite the fact he went through many ridiculous maneuvers, much to the delight of the crowd, Cozza proved that he could throw plenty of leather when he wanted to and proceeded to do so, only he was a trifle late in his attack and Andrews walked off with the decision.

'We Are Ready,' New England's Chorus as Draft Is Completed

EVENING AMERICAN, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 30, 1940

America confidently marched into a new, dramatic era today with drawing at dawn of the last blue pellet significant of her future freedom—perhaps liberty itself.

Through 18 drama-packed hours the lottery numbers which mean future defenders for this nation droned on as Americans met the call with their characteristic unity.

Massachusetts, like all the rest of the country, faced the call to service with hardly a dissenting voice. In every section of the state, young registrants stormed their local draft boards to learn their standing and what was necessary next.

Youths from 21 through 35 heard their numbers drawn and invariably said they were "ready to go." Married men as well as those who are single declared they were ready for a year of military training. Even anxious mothers faced the future determinedly.

As soon as copies of the master list of numbers drawn are received by district boards from Washington, the work of setting up each district's Order Number list will start.

When a registrant's final order number is established, he will receive his questionnaire. Answers to the questionnaire and physical examinations will determine his classification.

It is busy, Selective Service officials said, that the first batch of questionnaires will go out within a week. The registrant has five days in which to answer this form. Questionnaires will be mailed out at the rate of about 50 a day.

There was little talk today of anything save the big peace-time conscription. Americans apparently even forgot there was a war as well as a national election only a week away.

MANY LACK NUMBERS

Thousands of New England's draftees still were without their serial numbers but officials fast were straightening out the confused and hastily assembled listings. The time was short and in many parts of Greater Boston inadequate quarters for the local draft boards had hampered the groundwork.

Draft officials, however, warned that the number drawn for each Massachusetts registrant will not be, in a great majority of cases, the number ultimately assigned to him by his local draft board.

In most instances it will be nearer the top of the list to be posted locally within a few days. A registrant's official order number is the one posted by his local board.

This is the reason for it: Massachusetts has no draft board with a serial number higher than 5794. But in the giant goldfish bowl in the drawing at Washington there were numbers as high as 9002. Thus Massachusetts draft boards will be forced to disregard numbers higher than 5794.

The average number of registrants on Massachusetts boards is 3000. Thus, a registrant who was drawn 500th on the list will find he is among the first 50 on the list posted by his local board.

2 Big Signs Heckle F. D.

Waggle Technology fraternity boys had wagged up two huge signs today which President can hardly escape reading when he visits the Back Bay home of his son, John, late today.

"Inspection Tour or Fishing Trip?" read one of the signs. "Massachusetts Welcomes Willkie," was printed on the other.

The big signs were suspended from two of four Tech fraternity houses whose rear entrances open into the private lane off the west side of Massachusetts ave., near Beacon st., which the President will enter.

The lane, giving easier access to the home of John Roosevelt from the rear of the Beacon st. apartment block, was paved last night by the city, a work which residents have vainly been trying to have done for six years.

Lewis Bans Job in Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (INS)—John L. Lewis, CIO chieftain, today declared he would not accept the post of Secretary of Labor in the cabinet of Wendell L. Willkie should he be elected President.

In a move obviously intended to silence rumors that he had been offered the cabinet post in exchange for his bolt from the New Deal to the support of the Republican candidate, Lewis, in a formal statement said:

"In the past, I have been offered the portfolio of labor and I have declined it. If, in the future, it should be again tendered me, I would decline it."

Lewis directed his statement at Sen. Wagner (D.) of New York, father of the Wagner Labor Relations Act, and one of those who was selected by the Democratic National Committee to answer Lewis' radio speech of last Friday in which the CIO chieftain declared for Willkie.

Wagner, Lewis said, had hinted in his broadcast reply that Lewis had been offered the cabinet membership.

17-Hour, 31-Minute Lottery Ends With Mixup In Numbers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (AP)—The grand conscription lottery, which held marching orders for some 5,000,000 young Americans, finished in an unlooked-for flurry today with six numbers missing, but finally wound up officially with two numbers more than it should have had.

In the rainy dawn after 17 hours and 31 minutes of drawing from the big draft bowl, a last solitary blue capsule was picked up from the glass bottom by Brig-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, assistant selective service director. It was 5:47 a. m. (E. S. T.).

That capsule should have been the 9000th—the number of capsules originally believed placed in the bowl before the drawing opened at 12:18 p. m. yesterday.

Instead, it proved to be the 8994th. Despite the most elaborate precautions, six number-bearing blue capsules were missing.

7839 LAST NUMBER

Selective service officials immediately initiated a check to track down the omitted numbers. Manual records kept throughout the Marathon drawing confirmed the number of missing numbers as six. The master list disagreed, however, showing eight unaccounted for.

To make sure that every number missing from the master list would be drawn, Gen. Hershey had a special "junior drawing" of those eight numbers—a brief sweepstakes witnessed by a handful and over in five minutes.

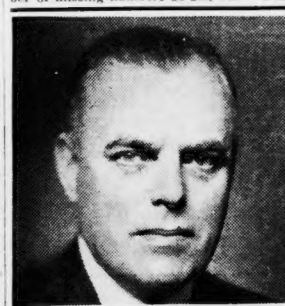

The official last number drawn accordingly was the 90024 No. 7839.

The "junior drawing" epilogue made the total elapsed time for the actual drawing 17 hours and 31 minutes, a much slower performance than the first World War draft in 1917, when 10,500 numbers were picked in 16 hours and 29 minutes.

WILLKIE HITS U. S. ENVOYS WHO MEDDLE IN POLITICS

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO BALTIMORE, Oct. 30 (AP)—Accusing President Roosevelt of "buck passing" and "boon-doggling neglect" of American defenses, Wendell L. Willkie returned East today with the charge that a third term would endanger preparedness, and that "democracy itself may be lost."

The Republican Presidential nominee is expected by associates to devote a large part of his final campaign speeches to defense issues, which he emphasized last night in two addresses at Charleston, W. Va.

In the first, delivered to a cheering crowd which jammed the City auditorium, Willkie declared that the President in recent years had "over-ruled the experts" and failed to ask for sufficient funds to build up the army and navy.

FASSED BUCK, CHARGE
Last January, he said, Mr. Roosevelt recommended an increase of $250,000,000 in defense appropriations, whereas Congress later voted money and contract authorizations for additional $10,000,000,000. "Thus," the nominee added, "he was only one fortieth right."

In his second Charleston speech, a national radio broadcast from his private Pullman car, Willkie argued that the President "sought to place the whole blame for the accumulation of present problems upon a small group within the minority party."

HITS ENVOYS SONS

"Throughout America, there is a term for this kind of thing which every American understands," he continued. "That term, as applied to his own broadcast, is 'he passed the buck.'"

At the last minute, Willkie added a few paragraphs to his speech to criticize the Administration for having an ambassador on the job in only one major European capital, Moscow.

"Some of these ambassadors," he said, "are home taking active part in a partisan political campaign, and of course that is all with the approval of the third term candidate."

As President, he asserted, he himself would select for those positions only the "ablest and most devoted men" who would "spend their time wholeheartedly representing the interests of the United States."

ANSWER TO KENNEDY

Declaring ambassadors should be above partisan politics, he continued.

"And they should not seek to advise us about our defense program, a subject about which their knowledge can only be slight, particularly after they have only been on the American shores for a few hours."

"Some of these ambassadors are apparently advising the American people that we should not change Presidents until Hitler permits it by stepping down from power."

He did not mention any envoys by name, but his talk came shortly after Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain, made a radio speech in support of the President.

The New Deal, Willkie contended, argues that public sentiment would not have supported a defense program before Germany invaded Belgium and the Netherlands.

"That alibi is not a valid alibi for failure," he said. "It is the kind of alibi that got all the European democracies into trouble."

U. S. Air Pilot Killed in China

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 30 (AP)—Walter C. Kent of Kentwood, La., pilot, and seven Chinese passengers were killed when a passenger air liner of the China National Aviation Corp. was shot down yesterday by Japanese warplanes, an official announcement said today.

Two other Chinese passengers and the Chinese co-pilot and hostess survived.

The plane, en route from Chungking to Kunming, fell near Changy 80 miles from Kunming.

Kent was a graduate of Sewanee University, Tennessee. He joined the China National Aviation Corp. in 1937. He is survived by his widow, the former Marie Brown, American-born resident of Shanghai, and their son, Peter, 3.

Smith Invades Hub Tomorrow

A revised schedule for Al Smith's visit to Boston tomorrow was announced by the Willkie volunteer committee today.

"The Happy Warrior," who will invade the Hub just 24 hours after the visit of President Roosevelt, will speak in behalf of Wendell Willkie at a gigantic rally in Symphony Hall tomorrow night.

Smith, who took his famous walk in 1932, will arrive at the Back Bay station with his wife and son at 5:25 p. m.

Extra police will guard his route to the Copley Plaza, where he will hold a press conference at 6 P. M.

At eight, he arrives at the Willkie rally in Symphony Hall, and from 9 to 9:30 is on the air over WAAE and the Colonial network.

PROBE FIRE IN WAR BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30 (INS)—A mysterious, early morning fire which swept the vital Signal Corps wing of the War Department building, today resulted in Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, convening a special army board of inquiry to investigate all angles "including the possibility of sabotage."

Gen. Marshall, who hurried to the scene of the fire when it was discovered at 4:05 a. m., said that he feared many irreplaceable and valuable documents in the department's code room had been destroyed or damaged by smoke and water.

The spectacular blaze was fought by 32 Washington fire companies for more than two hours.

TROOPS ON GUARD

The entire area surrounding the building was posted with 500 soldier-guards rushed from Virginia army posts.

Pending a more complete inspection of the code room, located on the third floor of the four-story building, Marshall said available reports indicate that the key chamber had not been completely destroyed.

An adjacent radio transmitting station, operated by the Signal Corps, was undoubtedly damaged by water and smoke, but probably not by fire, Marshall said.

RUSHES PROBE

Summoning his highest aide, Marshall announced he would convene an army board of inquiry to probe the blaze.

"We are hoping our valuable records in the code room are not destroyed," Marshall said. "If they were it will be most unfortunate."

War Department officials said that the fire could not have struck any more vital portion of the building than the wing in which it originated. The Signal Corps comprises the "master switchboard" for the department's entire communications.

Wrong Harvard Student Taken For Speeding

It turned out, police agreed, to be the wrong Harvard student in Newton court, today, and a warrant making four charges against another student in an automobile case was sworn out.

When Frederick Van D. Rogers of Minneapolis, a sophomore, appeared in court on a summons for speeding in Newton on Oct. 20, he protested that he had loaned the car the day before to a fellow student for only 15 minutes but the other had kept it nearly 24 hours.

Motorcycle Officer William L. Whelan, it was brought out, had chased the car for a mile and then had been handed the owner's registration certificate by the driver, who said he had left his driver's license in his room.

After Rogers had proved to the satisfaction of officials that he had not been driving the car, a warrant was issued against Ian Thompson, a freshman, of New York city.

The warrant charged Thompson with giving a false name, refusing to stop for an official, speeding and driving without a license.

Judge Donald E. Mayberry continued the case to Nov. 16 and police, meanwhile, went looking for Thompson with a warrant.

Sullivan, Fisher Face Vote Probe

Michael J. "Subsle" Sullivan, former Salem Democrat, and William A. Fisher, former chairman of the Boston Traffic Commission, both received summonses today to appear before the Boston Election Commission and show cause why their names should not be stricken from the list.

The men were among 128 persons that Theodore Hollis, director of registration for the State Republican Committee, has charged are illegally registered for the coming election in Boston. Fisher, who served the city under the regime of Mayor Mayor Nicholas, termed the action spite because he recently had campaigned for Atty.-Gen. Dever although he for years had been a Republican.

Czar Nicholas' Niece Dies in London

London, Oct. 30 (AP)—Death of Princess Elizabeth, 33, niece by marriage of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia, at Wilderness House, Clarendon Court Palace, was announced today.

Italian by birth, she was married to Prince Andre, a son of Grand Duchess Xenia. She settled in England after the Russian revolution. Her children, Prince Michael and Princess Xenia, became British subjects two years ago.

Also aboard was Dr. Glenn Crim, who has been a dentist in Madras, India, for 20 years. With him were his wife, his six-year-old daughter, Eleanor, and his sister, Loretta Crim.

HUB HEAD OF NAZI RAIDER

Sinking of six ships by an armed German raider off the coast of India was revealed today with the arrival of the American passenger freighter Excellency at the Army Base.

Passengers on the American Export liner declared that British and Dutch naval units were hunting the raider, which had destroyed five British and one Greek ships.

The raider, which has not previously been reported here, is apparently following the course of the Emden, famous World War raider.

A Dutch cruiser, hunting the raider, was sighted by the Excellency off Madagascar.

Among the five passengers aboard the Excellency was Arnold E. Jenney, general secretary of the YMCA in Istanbul, Turkey.

Jenney declared the Turks are ready to fight with Soviet backing if the Axis powers move toward the Dardanelles. He said there had been a great anti-religious movement in Turkey which extended even to the Mohammedan faith.

Also aboard was Dr. Glenn Crim, who has been a dentist in Madras, India, for 20 years. With him were his wife, his six-year-old daughter, Eleanor, and his sister, Loretta Crim.

KENNEDY ASKS F.D. BE GIVEN 3D TERM

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP)—Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy branded as 'false' a charge that President Roosevelt was trying to involve this country in the war abroad and called for his reelection as the man who "can best serve the nation."

Kennedy, who made a hurried return by Clipper plane Sunday from England, spoke over a nationwide network of the Columbia broadcasting system in a program sponsored by his wife and nine children.

He denied there was a secret commitment by the President to Great Britain to lead the United States into war, saying:

RE-ARM FOR PEACE

"If President Roosevelt were as wicked as his opponents charge, which he is not, and even if he had undisclosed commitments, which he has not, the facts are against our participation in this war."

The ambassador asserted that, in his post as representative of the American people in London, he "would certainly become aware" of any such commitment and that he could "assure you now with absolute sincerity and honesty that there has been no such commitment."

"We are re-arming," he said, "because it is the only way in which America will stay out of war. It is, today, our guarantee of peace."

"It is not an answer to our problem that strong men, able men, may be summoned to cabinet posts. Ultimately, decisions on burning questions of policy will have to be made by the Chief Executive. A new hand cannot give these problems that careful, thorough and intelligent attention which they must immediately have if our nation is to be secure."

"In the light of these considerations, I believe that Franklin D. Roosevelt should be re-elected President of the United States."

TALKS ON WAR ISSUE

Dwelling specifically on the war issue, Kennedy said American people favored avoiding war and pointed out that there was no conflict on that score among the candidates for the presidency.

"The Republicans," he said, "have expressly approved this policy. If we declared war, our best interests would be harmed, England's valiant fight is giving us time to prepare. Without assistance from us, the British will find it much more difficult to carry on."

He said nothing could be more harmful from the viewpoint of Great Britain than the declaration of war by the United States.

Discussing the possibility that the United States could be attacked, Kennedy said that problem presented "the same difficulties to any belligerent that our attacking them does."

"I have seen an outnumbered but brave band of RAF (Royal Air Force) flyers and about 20 miles of water keep back the German invader," he said. "The answer still rings out—speed in re-arming."

"Three thousand miles of ocean, while handy, in and of itself is not enough protection for us. But with an adequate navy we are assured of a greater measure of safety."

Kennedy said he had heard from

"a great many people" that the defense program was "bogging down," and added that it was unfortunate that this charge had been "injected into a political campaign when national teamwork is necessary."

"If we now lack the crusading effort for re-arming," he went on, "and I hope we do not, it is certainly not to be laid at the door of the White House. The President has provided a program and the nation's best specialists and a Democratic Congress has provided ample funds."

"If blame there be, we all must share in the inherent weakness of our democratic system, where force and propaganda have no place, even in the vital job of re-arming."

WAR OF MACHINES

Declaring that the lessons of this war were ours for the taking, Kennedy asserted that the European combat was one in which machines were more important than men, and said:

"I have always been of the opinion that if Mr. Chamberlain had had 5000 first-line planes at home when he conferred at Munich, we would have truly seen 'peace in our time.'"

Here Kennedy left the war question to answer rumors that he had left London because of a rift with the President.

"It is true," he said, "that there have been disagreements between the President and me—I have disagreed with him sharply on some issues. And I have disagreed with him on methods employed in carrying out objectives on which we agreed."

"I am certain that if he has had the time to study my work, as I have his, that he has found things done by me with which he disagreed. But such is not uncommon. I am positive every employee is not always in agreement with his employer, and certainly the opposite is true."

UNITY MAIN THING

"However, these are times, as you all know, when clamor for national unity—times when national teamwork is vital, and when only fundamental disagreements should be considered. Happily, on these great, momentous questions of foreign policy, trade, commerce and the future of our American way of life I find little basis for disagreement with the President."

Discussing the third term controversy, the diplomat said it was true that nothing in the constitution limited the term of service, and likewise true that the tradition "really represents the preference of earlier Presidents."

"Nevertheless, in normal times, I might be persuaded that the best interests of the country called for no third term," he added. "But the third term is the least of the many considerations which the American people should take into account in exercising their choice a week hence."

Spared Long Term In Fake Check Case

Though he faced the prospect of six months in jail after pleading guilty to cashing fake checks while illegally wearing a naval officer's uniform, Henry Clarke Corbin, 29, a U. S. Naval Academy graduate, could feel thankful today.

He was spared an 18-months sentence by Federal Judge Francis J. W. Ford, who decided not to enforce an earlier suspended sentence imposed for a similar offense.

DECIDED VOTERS LEAN TO WILLKIE

By ARCHIBALD M. CROSSLEY

Copyright, 1940, Crossley Incorporated, International Research Corporation

Among those polled Oct. 22 who had made their decisions during the preceding week, 60 per cent decided for Willkie, 40 per cent for Roosevelt. This compares with an even break among those who were making their decisions earlier.

This poll utilizes newly-developed techniques to measure the so-called "undecided" vote. While some voters will make up their minds even on election day, the great majority made their final selection long ago. The states so far reported 4.9% of those interviewed said that they made their selection during the preceding week, 3.7% about two weeks previously, 10.5% about a month ago, and 60.9% before that.

CHANGE GRADUAL

Particularly in this election there is a great deal of very strong feeling. There are Roosevelt admirers and Roosevelt haters, Willkie boosters and those violently opposed to him. People with intense feeling do not change their opinions readily.

Even the power of Hiram Johnson, John L. Lewis and others cannot swing tremendous numbers in a short time. Any true measure of shifting, therefore, must take into account the voter who favors a given candidate mildly.

The importance of this is demonstrated for example in the state of Ohio. There 3.8% report no decision as yet, but 8 out of 10 Willkie voters and 6 out of 10 Roosevelt voters report their choices as "probable." Adding these in with the undecided voters we have one-tenth subject to possible shift.

On the same basis Iowa voters reported pivotal at this time would total 12%, Illinois 6%, Massachusetts 6%, Pennsylvania 8%, New York 6%.

MANY WILL CHANGE

Undoubtedly some part of those who now say they are sure which way they will vote will change their decision. What part we do not now know. If none of them did, the popular vote in a given state on election day should not differ greatly from the situation today.

To demonstrate this, consider a state with 10 per cent of its voters pivotal, and that Roosevelt now has 35 per cent and Willkie 45 per cent of the "sure" vote. In 110 interviews—55 Roosevelt, 45 Willkie, 10 pivotal. Not all 10 would swing to Willkie—the likely maximum is 6, which would mean 59 Roosevelt, 51 Willkie—or 53.6 per cent Roosevelt—a shift of 1.4 from the total brought about by a shift of 6 out of 10 pivotal votes.

SHIFT SINCE 1936

Estimates of final vote cannot be made solely on the basis of shifts from the preceding election, because of new voters, those who have died, those who have moved, and the non-voters.

Actual defections, however, provide an important clue.

In each interview the voter is asked how he voted in 1936, and the same voters are tallied for their 1940 and 1936 selections.

The following interesting comparisons have been obtained for six of the states so far reported.

ARBITRATION FOR FISH PIER STRIKE

Speedy entrance of the State Board of Arbitration was expected today in the strike of 60 employees of the O'Hara Bros. Co., members of the Seafood Workers' Union (A. F. of L.), following establishment of picket lines around eight stores of the company at the Boston Fish Pier.

Union officials said the strike was called when negotiations for a new contract became deadlocked over the demand for a preferential shop clause. The O'Hara company, union heads said, refused to include this clause. Company officials said they refused to consider the preferential shop clause because they wished to protect old employees who do not want to become members of the union.

Two other companies have also refused to sign the new contract because of this clause, but no strike against them has been called. Other affiliated Fish Pier unions are supporting the Seafood Workers in their demands.

We'll Put Our Money on POWER

THERE are two ways you can go about engineering an automobile.

You can think it out or you can tinker it out.

You can get right down to the tough job of building better, livelier, abler performance into the engine—or you can fiddle around with expedients that seem to do the job.

It is plain, of course, that the sole source of car performance is the power plant.

And all engineers know that if you build in enough power and flexibility you can get the thrilling kind of performance car owners want.

Pull, pick-up, hill-climbing, economical gear ratios, less need for changing gears—you can get them all from abundant power.

The one thing that has stood in the way has been the difficulty of getting this power without also increasing the size of the engine.

Now, sweating out more power from the same size engine and the same amount of fuel is a down-to-earth, hard-work job.

But—it's the right and proper way to get the wanted result without falling back on extra mechanisms that complicate chassis design.

And that's what Buick engineers have done.

of America's Most Powerful Standard-Production Engine

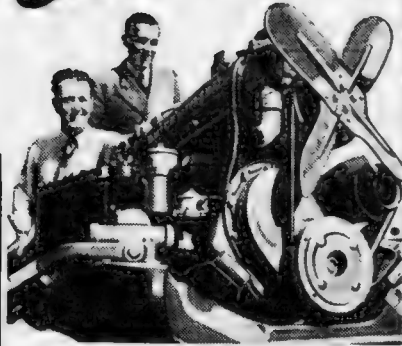

Basic source of this engine's peak power is the FIREBALL design which compacts the fuel charge into the shape of a flattened ball around the spark. Fired from its heat under higher compression pressure, each charge lets go with heavier wallop that extracts more power from each charge of fuel. Amplifying this is Compound Carburetion, in which the usual large carburetor is replaced by two smaller mixers teamed to work together. Only one of these carburetors functions in normal driving. The other cuts in automatically whenever it is needed to provide extra power, shuts off when the need is past. Result: Actually more power from less gasoline.

They have concentrated their 1941 creative thought on providing greater and more flexible power in the engine itself.

They have done this through FIREBALL design and Compound Carburetion—and what they've accomplished for you boils down to this:

You get more power—eight, eighteen or twenty-four more horsepower from the same size engines as last year—power that gets you off like a bullet and sweeps you up a hill like a fighter plane "going upstairs."

You get more mileage—from all engines and at all speeds—as much as 10% to 15% more miles per gallon and the benefits of overdrive all the time you are in "high."

You get easier car handling—less gear changing from a tremendous power reserve that pulls the hills and negotiates traffic without the necessity of dropping into lower gear ratios.

You get greater safety—from quick pick-up that lifts you surely out of tight spots, and from the full and immediate braking power of your engine without the "lag" while liquid couplings and the like readjust themselves.

Finally you get a chassis that is clean, simple and direct in design—uncluttered by intricate mechanisms that are hard to service and difficult to repair.

In brief you get basic improvement in your car's capacity for performance—and when you're spending several hundred dollars for an automobile, that's important enough to look into.

RAF Bombs Berlin As London Sleeps

LONDON, Oct. 30 (AP)—German air raiders gave Londoners lengthy breathing spells during the night, and the 53rd consecutive nightly assault on the capital ended before dawn today.

While southeastern England, including the London area, was bearing the brunt of Nazi nighttime assaults, Royal Air Force bombers attacked "a number of targets in Germany, including some in the Berlin area," despite adverse weather conditions, the air ministry announced.

R. A. F. POUNDS GERMANY
Flares were started at oil plants, the ministry said, at Homburg, Steinkunde and Madgeburg.

Again the British raiders roared down on Bremen and Wilhelmshaven, Germany, and on Den Helder, Ymuiden and Flushing, Holland, and Ostend, Belgium, attacking shipyards and docks.

Other planes raided railway communications, airbases, searchlight batteries and anti-aircraft gun positions. The British lost two planes in the operations, the ministry said.

(In Berlin, informed sources declared "weak formations" of British planes flew over northern Germany during the night, but that none approached Berlin. These sources said several hundred Nazi bombers staged night attacks on England to resume "destruction of British war and vital centers."—Editor's note.)

A number of persons were killed in German attacks at several points in eastern and northeastern England where, a government communique charged, the raiders machine-gunned streets at several places. "Casualties were not numerous," it added.

MANY FIRLS STARTED

In two towns in the industrial midlands, incendiary bombs started "many" fires, the communique said, but these were reported quickly extinguished or brought under control. Some houses were reported destroyed, and commercial and other buildings were damaged.

The Nazi raiders also attacked Merseyside, the dock and shipbuilding section of Liverpool. There, the damage was described as "small in extent."

The government revised its figures on yesterday's air battles to bring to 27 the total of German planes claimed shot down, as against seven British planes acknowledged lost.

U. S. Destroyers On Mystery Trip

Key West, Fla., Oct. 30 (AP)—Naval officials here remained silent today as to the whereabouts of five destroyers of the Key West neutrality patrol and a seaplan tender which sailed under sealed orders from this port at the southernmost tip of the Florida Peninsula. The craft, hurriedly provisioned and fueled for an extended voyage, left yesterday, and soon afterwards 11 naval bombing planes likewise took off for an undisclosed destination.

Commandant Walter F. Jacobs of the Key West station declined to comment except to say the ships were under sealed orders. It was reported reliably that their mission was an important one.

CANADIAN ARTIST DIES

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 30 (AP)—Arthur Heming, 70, one of the best known of Canada's artists and also a novelist, died early today at the home of a sister, Mrs. Robert B. Acres of Hamilton.

NAZIS HINT Nazi Subs Claim Heavy Ship Toll

BERLIN, Oct. 30 (AP)—Well-informed German sources hinted today that the Axis powers, determined to shatter Britain's strength in the Mediterranean, soon may hand Turkey an ultimatum similar to that which preceded Italy's invasion of Greece.

Turkey, like Greece, is a friend of Britain, which has guaranteed to help her in event of aggression by any European nation involving Turkey in war in the Mediterranean.

Commenting upon Axis plans, the semi-official Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz—which has close connections with the German foreign office—said:

"EXTIRPATE BASES"
"Wherever British bases and hideouts exist, they must be extirpated in the interests of the European continuity. This naturally applies to the Mediterranean."

Previously, the usually well-informed Dienst Aus Deutschland indicated Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini had agreed at their Florence meeting Monday upon some unified action against Britain in which France and Spain might have a role.

The National Zeitung of Essen predicted the next Axis step would be an attempt to sever British connections with Europe, Asia and Africa so that no port in those continents would be open to British warships.

Dienst Aus Deutschland said British efforts to "sabotage the Axis work of continental unity" had only strengthened the German-Italian determination to strip the continent of all British influences. The same, this commentary said, held true for the Mediterranean area.

BERLIN, Oct. 30 (AP)—German submarines have torn "a disastrous hole" in British naval forces informed German sources declared today without elaboration.

They also said combined German and Italian air force units had carried out "successful" attacks on many British airports in the last 24 hours. London, Liverpool, Ramsgate and Coventry were special targets of strong units, they said. The sinking of three merchant ships, totalling 18,400 tons, by a German warship "operating in overseas waters" was reported today by the high command, which also said a submarine sank a large armed merchant ship of 10,500 tons.

Hearst Hub Papers Give Draftees Party

After a night of patriotic fervor and good time, 42 of Greater Boston's Honor Roll draftees—a group of the 89 who held No. 158 in Boston district—today announced they were eager for army training as soon as the word is given.

The 42 young Americans were honored guests at a party given by the Boston American-Record and Advertiser in observing their coming part in this nation's peacetime preparedness program.

All 42, invited by telegrams as soon as their number had been drawn, gathered at the American-Record offices in Winthrop sq. and in Checker taxis, furnished by Taxi Owner Frank Sawyer, moved behind a police motorcycle escort to the Versailles Club, Boston's newest supper resort.

Al Taxler of the Versailles played host to the 42 No. 1 ordermen, his waiters and chefs vying with each other to serve them with a chicken dinner, while Jacques Renard arranged a special score of music and a line of beautiful girls under command of Mickey Alpert, of the Coconut Grove volunteered their services to stage an unusually fine floor show for them.

Beautiful Gloria Whitney, newest singing sensation, thrilled all with her patriotic songs.

At the Versailles, 20 girls were giving a farewell party to Rose Breanick of Roxbury, who is going to Florida for the winter. The two parties got together on the dance floor, to add to the enjoyment.

From the Club, the group was taken to the Metropolitan Theater as guests of MAM Theater executives.

A special section of the theater was reserved for them by Jack Goodwin, manager, and they thrilled to the film life of Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, in All-American. Harold G. Kern, publisher of the Record-American-Advertiser group delivered a short congratulatory speech to the assembled No. 1 order men.

HONOR ROLLERS

With the exception of one single man, who has a dependent mother, father and two others in his family, all the single men said there was nothing to bar them from service and declared they were eager and willing to serve.

Among the married men present were:

Blayer Suspect Caught in Love Tryst

ATTLEBORO, Oct. 30—Six hours after he allegedly murdered a guard and bludgeoned the latter's wife into insensibility, John Saitkowski, 24, escaped Connecticut Reformatory trusty, was seized at gunpoint today as he was parked in a local lovers' lane with a Pawtucket girl, his former sweetheart.

The arrest culminated a three-state search by state and municipal police after John A. Beall, 60, the guard, had been found fatally beaten at his home in Cheshire, Ct., near the reformatory.

The victim's wife, Mrs. Susan Beall, 50, was also discovered lying unconscious in an upstairs room, her skull crushed by hammer blows. She was taken in a dying condition to St. Mary's Hospital Waterbury, Ct.

Connecticut state police, called by a prison alarm when authorities learned Saitkowski was missing, traced the youth to Pawtucket, R. I., his former home. They said he used Beall's auto.

Shortly after midnight, the machine was spotted by Patrolmen Ervin Crooks and John Drew of Attleboro in Evergreen st., Attleboro, a secluded road leading off the Boston-Providence highway.

With guns drawn, the officers crept to the machine and found Saitkowski and his girl companion. The youth gave himself up without resistance, police said.

The girl was released when she convinced the police she knew nothing of Saitkowski's escape. He corroborated her statement, police said, that he had come to her home in Pawtucket, declaring he had been paroled and was going straight.

Saitkowski waived rendition proceedings and was turned over to Connecticut officers, who returned him to Cheshire.

Sgt. William D. Norwood of the Attleboro police quoted the youth as saying he was cleaning Beall's home when he found a bottle of whiskey.

He drank the contents, he was quoted as saying, but could not definitely recall the events which occurred later.

JAMES STEWART as the errant writer and Genevieve Tobin as the blonde menace in "No Time for Comedy," opening tomorrow on the Metropolitan's screen. Rosalind Russell is co-starred with Stewart.

MIA SLAVENSKA is one of the leading Ballet Russe stars, opening Monday night at the Boston Opera House.

HERE'S the Big Chief himself, Charles Chaplin to you, and his girl friend, Paulette Goddard, in a romantic scene from "The Great Dictator," here tomorrow at the State and Orpheum.

'No Time for Comedy' Comes To Met's Screen Tomorrow

Hub audiences will have their first opportunity to see "No Time for Comedy," the Broadway laugh-hit, when the James Stewart-Rosalind Russell co-starring picture opens an engagement tomorrow at the Metropolitan theater.

Based on S. N. Bergman's Broadway hit of last year, "No Time for Comedy" tells the hilarious story of what happens to a playwright famous for his comedies when he falls under the influence of a blonde who specializes in inspiring artists to give the world a message. Among the things that happen are a rousing fight between the playwright's wife and the blonde, a near romance between the playwright's discarded wife and the blonde's discarded husband, and a flop that turns out to be a big success.

Stewart plays the errant writer, Rosalind Russell his knowing wife, Genevieve Tobin the blonde menace, and Charlie Ruggles her millionaire husband. Allen Joselyn has a high comedy role as a harried stage director; Clarence Kolb plays a yes-man producer, and dusky Louis Heavers plays the theatrical maid who sees all and tells all. William Reighley directed from the script by the Epstein brothers.

The companion film, "Father Is A Prince," is a domestic comedy featuring Grant Mitchell, Nana Bryant and John Littel. The story revolves about an inconsiderate, though well-meaning father and the difficulties he causes his romantic young daughter. Noel Fennel directed for Warners.

Lawrence Girl Musical's Hit

The gal with the windmill legs, they call Melissa Mason, the tall, swivel-hipped eccentric dancer in the Messers, Shubert's new musical play, "Night of Love," now playing a two-weeks engagement, prior to Broadway, at the Shubert Theater.

Melissa Mason, headliner of Keith Memorial shows, and earlier this season a show-stopper in Eddie Dowling's abortive "The Little Dog Laughed," hails from Lawrence, Mass. As Melissa Freebody, the 23-year-old girl whose limbs are as long and rubbery as Olive Oyl's and whose comely features can be twisted into amazing grimaces, commenced her dancing as a pupil of Beatrice and Lois Gingers in Lawrence, where she was a featured performer in their annual recitals for years. Her family now lives in Methuen.

"I wanted to be a musical comedy dancer," says Melissa, "and do graceful kicks and whirls. But I found the eccentric style more in my line; flapping my hands and flinging my feet around in the air as if they didn't belong to me."

Chaplin's 'Great Dictator' Opens at Loew's Tomorrow

After breaking all records in its first week at New York's Capitol and Astor theaters, Charlie Chaplin's new film, "The Great Dictator," grossed $170,000 in its second week at the Manhattan houses.

"The Great Dictator," acclaimed a superlative accomplishment by a great and true artist by some critics and pushed around by others because Chaplin's caricature of Hitler is "too grim a subject for jesting," comes to Loew's State and Orpheum screens tomorrow.

The New York public appears to have taken to its heart "The Great Dictator," with Chaplin performing in the dual role of the little Jewish barber and Adenoid Hynkel, the tyrannical dictator of Tomania, and speaking at least as the timorous barber and the ranting, raving dictator.

Paulette Goddard, as the waif; Jack Oakie, as the jaw-jutting Benigno Napolini; Billy Gilbert, Henry Daniell and Reginald Gardiner head the supporting cast.

"The Great Dictator" is about two hours and 10 minutes long. Performances will be continuous in the usual way, five shows a day. The prices will be 75 cents for matinees; $1.10 for evenings; children, admitted to all matinees for $28, these include all taxes. The picture will not be shown anywhere at lower prices until at least the summer of 1941.

17 Americans In Ballet Cast

Seven leading members of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo which comes to the Boston Opera House next Monday night for a week of Russian dancing have applied for American citizenship recently.

Leonide Massine, artistic director and chief dancer, Andre Eglevsky who dances romantic leads in classic ballets, George Zolitch who is featured in the new production, "The New Yorker," Michel Katcharoff and the two conductors, Effrem Kurtz and Franz Albra, have taken out their first citizenship papers.

The largest number of American dancers ever to appear with a Russian dancing company will be seen here with the Ballet Russe. In all there are 17 American members of the troupe. This includes several solo dancers, Roland Guerdard, one of the best classic dancers in the company, Marc Platoff who has the principal role in the new Stravinsky ballet, "Poker Game," T. Robert Irwin and Miada Mladova.

RUTH GORDON CHALKS UP ANOTHER TRIUMPH AT CO

'Here Today' Gay Comedy

By PEGGY DOYLE

Life was exceedingly gay for the Copley's cash and pass customers last night the while Ruth Gordon worked her dorotheaparkerish wiles in George Oppenheimer's 10-year-old comedy, "Here Today."

Remembering her in the more dramatic moods... the screen's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," in which she played two widely divergent wives to great men, movie-goers in the audience were inclined to marvel at her current regeneration as an expert comedienne.

Thus, of course, was patently sacrifice to the many Ruth Gordon fans to whom her impressive record of past performances spell versatility of the highest order in any language. To mention just a few, "Saturday's Children," "Born From," "The Country Wife," "Serena Blamish," "They Shall Not Die," "A Doll's House" and "Three Cornered Moon."

In her present role of Mary Hild, divorcee and one of the literary's most glittering personalities, Miss Gordon proves there is method in her madness.

With her equally irresponsible admirer, King Calder, Miss Gordon depends upon the Nassau estate of the Back Bay's ultra-conservative Windrows and takes over. Miss Windrow could be no more dazed if she were a visitor from Mars. Claire Windrow, to whom Miss Gordon's ex-husband is secretly betrothed, is no less fazed if better able to counterfeit concern. The "ex," knowing his unholy two-some only too well, is frankly desperate and says so.

Unhappily for his tenderly reared fiancée (or, mayhap, it was all for the best), the mercurial lady who used to be his wife starts recalling their brickbats-and-roses life together. There is a moment of tenderness, and the unpredictable damsel decides she loves him and she's going to win him back.

It's grand fun for the audience to see Miss Gordon put everybody through hoops and rewrite the plot for the aristocratic Windrows and the rest involved.

Miss Gordon alone is worth twice the price of admission, and she gets excellent support from Ethel Wilson, as Mrs. Windrow, King Calder as her dizzy devotee, Alan Hewitt as the off-again-on-again husband and Pauline Meyers as the sepien Gertrude, who never gets the answer to her patient query, "How many for lunch?"

EVENING AMERICAN, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 30, 1935

One-Eye Connolly Attempts Fail

The lengths to which a stage-struck public will go to get into a theater when a smash hit comes to town is amusingly illustrated by recent incidents at the Civic Repertory Theater, opposite Symphony Hall, where "Life With Father" is being received with appreciative roars of laughter these fine nights.

A few nights ago an extremely well-dressed lady approached a member of the Oscar Serlin management with a request for free tickets to the comedy.

It was explained to her that "Life With Father," in addition to being art of a high order, was also a commodity for which the public was eager to spend its money, and surely she would not think of going into a dress shop, which likewise offers both art and a commodity, and ask for a dress free.

Whereupon the lady burst into tears, exclaimed that she had never wanted to see anything so much, and she just had to get in, or she would absolutely die.

The probability is that the lady was indulging in hyperbole, since a search of the police records have so far failed to turn up any case of death by pining for "Life With Father."

At the risk of seeming to imply that ladies are in the majority among chasers, the case must be cited of a lady who turned up with a pass for the Repertory Theater, which had the doorman fooled for a moment, till it finally dawned upon him that the edges were yellow with age, and that the pass was a relic of the days when Henry Jewett's repertory company occupied the house—long before it was re-christened the Civic.

Maurice Evans Had Radio Tussle With England's King

Although a great deal has been said about competition between the stage and radio, Maurice Evans is the only actor we know who has had a real shoulder-to-shoulder tussle with this odd new invention. And the show-down involved not only Mr. Marconi's little wonder—it involved the King. It was the King against Hamlet. Evan's Hamlet against the Empire.

Evans, who may be seen through this week on the Colonial stage as Malvolio in the Theater Guild-Gilbert Miller production of "Twelfth Night," was remembering the occasion the other day during rehearsal. It happened in London during the jubilee in 1934. Even without the jubilee Evans had his hands full for at some time he was playing the full five-hour "Hamlet" and at other performances he was playing the conventional version.

This was "vastly complicated" by the decision to broadcast the King's Jubilee speech to London theatergoers.

"For a while," Evans says, "it was nip and tuck between the king and Hamlet. I had to play with one eye cocked for the signal to cut. I hoped it wouldn't come in the midst of a soliloquy, but it did."

It came, in fact, smack in the middle of the "rogue and peasant slave" speech. When the speech concluded, Evans strolled to the center of the stage and launched forth again.

STAGE PLAYS

TO THE PUBLIC OF NEW ENGLAND

As producer of America's most beloved comedy, I am proud to inform the public that every effort is being made to maintain fair and cordial relations between the box office of the Civic Repertory Theatre and purchasers of seats to

LIFE WITH FATHER

WITH DOROTHY GISH AND LOUIS CALHERN

I wish to emphasize that nothing will interfere with my cardinal policy of maintaining at all times the great bulk of the

BEST SEATS AT BOX OFFICE PRICES

If patrons are unable to secure the seats they want, either at the box office, or at Jordan Marsh's or Filene's, or by mail, at no advance in price, it will be only because these have already been sold—and NOT because they are being held for speculation by any agency. Any seat in the theatre can be purchased at the box-office, if it is ordered sufficiently in advance.

ACCREDITED TICKET BROKERS

are recognized as being engaged in a legitimate business endeavor, and are bound by obligations to a clientele which prefers to pay a fee for agency service. Accordingly, a limited number of tickets for "Life With Father" may be secured at the following agencies:

Tyson's • Burke's • Parker House • United Ticket Office
Hotel Statler • Hotel Ritz-Carlton • Hotel Touroine

are, I believe, the most satisfactory way of obtaining seats, for those who can plan their theatre-going in advance. Mail orders should specify (a) number, price and preferred location of seats, (b) date and day of week desired, (c) whether matinee or evening performance, and (d) a self-addressed stamped envelope should be enclosed for return of tickets. By ordering somewhat in advance, and for the early days of the week rather than for the universally popular Saturday night, patrons increase their chance of obtaining their first choice of location.

Jewry Answers Funds Appeal

The 1940 campaign of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies and the United Jewish Campaign moved forward with unprecedented response today following initial reports at the first workers' report luncheon.

This year the drive is in the form of a combine 1 appeal for local charities and refugee needs.

Following the first day's city-wide solicitation in the business and residential sections of Greater Boston, captains of trade and professional groups and workers, numbering more than 250, gathered to make their first reports. Samuel Markell, a campaign co-chairman, presided.

It was announced that the first trade team to "go over the top" and exceed this year's quota is the Women's Wear team captained by Herman Gilman.

NUMBER UP, FAILS TO HALT DRAW

CHICAGO, Oct. 30 (INS)—For a few tense hours it looked as if the National Draft Lottery couldn't go on at all—except over the protest of Oscar L. Scherr, a Chicago chemist. Scherr not only sought an injunction, but telegraphed the draft board in Washington to "hold everything" because, "due to the inefficiency of the local draft board my serial number has not been posted." Major Victor A. Kieber, director of the draft in Cook County, cleared up the situation with the statement: "Mr. Scherr's number was listed at his draft board at the very time he was complaining. Perhaps his eyesight is faulty."

Son Gets Same Number as Dad

Father and son had the same number in the draft—156—but 33 years apart. Lawrence W. Bond, 21, of Ellipton pk., Waltham, was the first in District 156 to be called. And by a strange coincidence that was the number assigned to his father, Henry F. Bond, former mayor of Waltham, in the 1917 draft. He was the father of three children and was not called. At present, he is Waltham director of public works. The son is a civilian employee of the Engineering Corps, U. S. A., and is not married.

TWO REASONS: His number 158, the first drawn in the national draft lottery, George S. Burke of Brighton is pretty sure he won't be called to serve, even though he would willingly. Two of the reasons he's sure are his two children... pictured with him after he received the news.

First Peace-Time Draft Lottery Ends in Capital 3519th Draw should turn up rather in the drawing lists, the result of the "junior draw" will be disregarded as far as they are concerned. No clues were immediately discovered as to how the missing numbers vanished from the bowl.

After the supplementary lottery, officials found that in it two serial numbers which had previously been given order numbers had been called. These serial numbers, 1072 and 6771 were drawn in order numbers of 8998 and 9000 but as soon as the duplication had been discovered, it was ruled that they would remain in their previously assigned order numbers.

Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, selective service director, who saw the lottery through from the drawing of the first number—158—to the unscheduled end, issued this statement at the finish:

"Today we have witnessed an unprecedented event in our peace-time history—the development of an orderly routine for the calling out of a vast peace-time army."

"Large military establishments have been avoided since the first colonies were established in this country, but it has been demonstrated in the last few hours that when necessity arises every man, every woman is willing to forego all precedent."

RE-CHECK LIST

Pending their re-check, officials were at a loss to understand what had become of the six or eight missing numbered slips. So far as the keeping of the records was concerned, the task had been entrusted throughout to specially trained, skilled and trusted employees of the selective service system.

A large-number of people, however, took part in the physical drawing of capsules from the draft jar. All who sought permission to help with the drawing were given an opportunity to do so, including messenger boys, newspaper reporters, tourists, large numbers of American Legionnaires, government clerks and others.

Officials suggested that possibly the missing numbers might have caught in the sleeves of those who drew out capsules, that they may have fallen off the table on which the bowl rested, or that they might not even have been in the bowl at the beginning.

WORKS ALL NIGHT

Gen. Hershey rejected suggestions that souvenir hunters were responsible for the A. W. O. L. numbers.

The capital slept while the drawing went ahead all night in state. The brightly lighted departmental auditorium—the only spot of brilliance in the row of cold and darkened Federal buildings along Constitution ave.

Many hours before the flags and drums, the dignitaries and the crowds had departed. Only the selective service officials and a small group of others kept the long watch in the all-but-deserted hall where the drawing of the first number—158—started the lottery at 12:16 p. m. yesterday.

By the time midnight arrived and the lottery moved into the morning hours of a new day, the crucial moment for most young men had passed, at least temporarily. More than enough numbers had been drawn to meet the first year's quota of 800,000 men.

At midnight the dull routine of the draw was interrupted by a changing of the guard and the appearance of a new crew of selective service workers. The first capsule taken from the glass jar on Oct. 30 contained serial number 5572—the 3501st number to be drawn.

Dr. Dykstra said that it was unlikely that any of the 10,000,000 serial numbers had been drawn before the first 1500 taken from the bowl would find their way in an army camp before next July 1.

LAST ONE—Holder of last Massachusetts number: drawn is Elliott Bachner of Brookline. No. 1835. He is married and has two children.

1835 LAST BAY STATE SERIAL NO.

Serial number 1835 was the 9001st and last number drawn for Massachusetts today as the weary Marathon of the national draft lottery came to a close in Washington.

All 27 districts in Boston and a large number of communities throughout the State had men whose serial number is 1835.

The last number actually drawn in Washington was 7298 but no Massachusetts board had a number of registrants that high.

REALIZING at long last that the country as a whole is blaming him for America's failure to re-arm in the face of a menacing international situation, President Roosevelt is doing what politicians have done from earliest times.

The President is blaming the other fellow. Of course, the other fellow is the Republican Party. With wisdom and prescience denied dispensable men, he—Mr. Roosevelt—says he saw the danger clearly.

He knew the remedy. He knew how to cope with the dictators of Europe and Asia. He alone could handle them. But the Republicans blocked him, tied his hands, sabotaged his patriotic program.

Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt, wearing the ill-fitting garments of the persecuted martyr, will prove that his illustrious predecessor, Abraham Lincoln, was wrong.

Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt will show that it is possible to fool all of the people all of the time.

But we doubt it. The record of the past seven years, which the President is citing in a last-minute effort to injure his opponents, emphasizes one important thing.

It reveals that a subservient Congress, overwhelmingly Democratic, gave Mr. Roosevelt more money to spend than any other ruler in the history of the world ever had at his disposal. Most of it was in the form of billion-dollar BLANK CHECKS.

The President's will was law. What he wanted he got.

BUT, instead of building a sufficient number of battle-ships, arming a sufficient number of men or contracting for a sufficient number of airplanes, Mr. Roosevelt preferred to BOONDOGGLE.

He squandered seven million dollars on a dam and then forgot about it.

He appropriated vast sums to teach men and women to tap dance.

He financed the slaughter of little pigs because he believed the country had too much pork.

He paid farmers not to plant, lest there be too much food. He experimented with growing trees in deserts and later gave up the idea when the trees withered and died.

He "anged" hundreds of dramatic productions, a great many of them Communistic.

He found millions to spend on WPA history books, some of which were so contemptuous of American ideals and traditions that community after community cried out in protest.

He created corporations with the people's money to compete with private industry.

He dumped millions into localities where he thought the millions would be most productive of votes.

NOW, because tap dancers are not a proper substitute for a defensive army, Mr. Roosevelt affects an air of injured innocence.

The billions he squandered are gone.

So are the dubious enterprises they supported.

And after seven long and miserable and expensive years the United States is STILL UNPREPARED.

No matter what excuses the President will make, thoughtful people everywhere will say:

"No, Mr. Roosevelt, you were not blocked.

"You overcame opposition to almost every other thing.

"Even when millions of people were angered by your appointment of a former Ku Klux Klansman to the Supreme Court you had your way.

"If you had really wanted this country to have effective military protection seven years ago, or three years ago, or two years ago, or last year, you would have succeeded similarly.

"You cannot escape the blame at this late date by saying the Republican Party forced you to teach tap dancing, sponsor Communistic plays or kill baby pigs.

"Your billion-dollar blank checks and the absence of an adequate Army, Navy and Air Force speak more convincingly than your desperate last-minute alibis."

SOUND ADVICE for international meddlers in our American government is contained in a timely and forceful book entitled "America and a New World Order."

The author is Graeme K. Howard, automobile executive.

Mr. Howard makes this pertinent observation:

"Unless we prove ourselves competent to solve our domestic problems, we can never hope to contribute to the solving of international difficulties.

"A nation must demonstrate that it can cope with its own problems before it has any right to interfere with others."

Books like that assist voters to weigh campaign issues more accurately and then to vote more intelligently.

Our Foreign Policy -1-

By GEN. R. E. WOOD

Here are important excerpts from an address delivered by General R. E. Wood on October 4, 1940, before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations:

NOW WE COME to our own danger of invasion and the perfectly fantastic hysteria that pervaded this country after the Battle of France.

I think any competent military or naval expert will tell you that there is absolutely no danger of an invasion of the United States even if Germany is completely victorious, and I doubt whether she will be.

The amount of shipping required for the transportation of even 250,000 men of a modern mechanized army with their ammunition and supplies over 3,000 miles of ocean is colossal and it is to be presumed that our own navy and air force will not be idle.

If it is impracticable or at least exceedingly difficult for an army to cross 25 miles of Channel, what valid grounds are there for supposing that a large army can cross 3,000 miles of ocean to invade a continent?

Now we come to the favorite bogey—Air Attacks. I quote from Major Al Williams' recent speech, reprinted in the Congressional Record:

"Oceans and extended lines of communication are still vital factors in modern warfare. President Roosevelt's panicky flight schedule for the air invasion of America is ridiculous, worthy of Hollywood and certainly not of the White House.

"Each and every stage of the fantastic itinerary for the air invasion of America would have to be conquered for the establishment of major air bases for the enemy attempting the job. The President must know this—but apparently the pattern is panic first and then war."

ALL OF THIS presupposes a completely victorious Germany, ready at the end of a long and costly struggle, immediately to embark on a new and perilous adventure across 3000 miles of ocean against a nation of 130,000,000 people.

The present war represents seven years of preparation on the part of Germany. So-called total war represents a prodigious expenditure of labor, money and effort. Steel is rapidly consumed, air craft and mechanical equipment are rapidly worn out, reserves of all kinds are exhausted, not to mention the wear and tear on human beings.

A nation that for seven years has been given guns instead of butter is apt at the end of this war to demand more butter from its leaders.

So on every count it seems inconceivable to me that Germany at the end of the war, even if aided by its allies, who will be in a worse condition of exhaustion than Germany itself, will attack the United States.

And if this country with its 130,000,000 people and its two great natural ocean barriers cannot defend itself unaided by Britain or anybody else, it does not deserve to survive.

Now as to our economic problems—an economic war after the war—the loss of our European, Asiatic and South American trade. After all, when two nations or two continents each have things the other needs trade eventually results regardless of the feelings each may have for the other.

Europe needs us more than we need Europe—our materials and products are more important to her than hers to us. True, Germany has reduced largely its purchases from us, but more from necessity than choice.

AS FAR as South America is concerned, we can always obtain the lion's share of the trade of Mexico, Central America, Colombia and Venezuela because we buy the metals of Mexico, the coffee and bananas of Central America and Colombia, the oil of Venezuela. In these countries, our geographical locations must always give us the edge. We can take the coffee of Brazil but not its cotton; as its trade will naturally divide between Europe and the United States.

It is in Argentina and Chile that our troubles come. We cannot take the meat, cotton and wool of Argentina because we produce those products ourselves. The same applies to the copper and nitrates of Chile. We cannot sell unless we buy and that is a bigger obstacle than all Nazidom.

MY DAY

MONDAY morning we rose early and went over to John and Anne's new apartment on Beacon st. to have breakfast and to see the baby.

It is a real test, I think of people's dispositions when you breakfast with them and they can greet you pleasantly. Anne has found an apartment with such beautiful, sunny rooms that the baby can lie and sun at his window.

Miss Thompson and I left at 9:30 for Framingham, and there we spent an interesting two-and-a-half hours seeing the women's prison. Dr. Miriam Van Waters seems to have the power of making people feel that here is a great opportunity to learn and, if they take it, they may profit by it just as they would any other opportunity for acquiring knowledge anywhere.

She has, of course, every variety of "student," as she calls them. They really are students. Some of them learn how to live decently for the first time, some of them learn that erudition is not real knowledge and that people who have little opportunity for academic education can often teach them something valuable.

THE PRISON industries were interesting to me, for I had not realized that the flags for the Army and the Navy, as well as for the State of Massachusetts, were largely made by the women in this institution. The state flags are painted by hand, and I should think they would require a certain amount of skill to produce absolutely correctly.

There is also a clothing shop, a poultry business and a cannery. For some strange reason the dairy is counted as maintenance and not as an industry, probably because they provide their own milk and do not sell to other institutions.

Two new buildings are a great contrast to the original one, which is fairly old. They are of the cottage type.

Mr. Lyman, the welfare commissioner, was with us through the morning and also some of the board visitors. A little after 1 o'clock I left very reluctantly to make a plane for New York city.

By 7 we were on the President's train in the Mott Haven yards. Mrs. Helm, Miss Thompson and Major Hooker were with me. We dined and I had a chance to see the President and then we went ahead to Madison Square Garden, for we wanted to hear as many of the speakers preceding the President as possible. It seemed to us a very good meeting.

Though the President was worried about the new development in Europe, I think he enjoyed the opportunity of talking to this big audience as well as the unseen one over the air.

Back to Boston on the night train, breakfast again with Johnny and now we are off to spend the night in Limerick, Me., with Mr. and Mrs. John Cutler.

BENNETTS SUFFER MISFORTUNES

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—CONSTANCE BENNETT: So you think YOU have troubles in Reno? While your father is in the hospital your sister, Barbara, also had to undergo hospital treatment. And her five children broke out with whooping cough all at the same time . . . EQUITY: The newest entertainment idea in N. Y. will be introduced by Harry Delf, who has written many hit plays. He proposes to revive successful plays, with well-known actors who are temporarily at liberty. Customers first will be served dinner in an adjoining room. Price for the dinner and show will be $7.50 per couple . . . ANITA LOOS: The blonde Drina Hill, who will appear in "Suzanna and the Elders," will wear a dark wig—because she resembles the blonde Hilda Stoddard, who has the leading role. Otherwise the audience might become confused . . . JOHN KIERAN: Mayor LaGuardia was invited to join you as a guest expert for "Information Please." He declined, explaining: "I've made a fool of myself too often—but I won't do it this way."

WILL HAYS: Some of the foremost directors in Hollywood will be offered commissions in the Army Signal Corps to help make educational shorts for public enlightenment about the work being accomplished by the Army. This will not disrupt the making of movies in Hollywood, because their Army work will entail only a few weeks' assignment each year . . . GOV. LEHMAN: The defunct Hudson River Night Line boats, whose Manhattan-Albany run was known throughout America, will be reconditioned for sale to the Federal Government. These boats will be used to transport troops for short distances . . . ANN ST. GEORGE: Your estranged husband, Alexis Thompson, is spreading his Broadway interests. He's backing a night club and will finance Dennis King's new show.

HARRY RICHMAN: Ben Marden, owner of the Riviera, signed a 10-year lease for the Hollywood Country Club in Florida. Your Richman-Louis-Tucker revue will open there Christmas Eve . . . GEORGE S. KAUFMAN: On the night Teddy Newton resigned from the cast of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" he had his three-year-old son, David, make a debut in the theater. Newton brought the boy on stage for the final bow . . . JOE MARTIN, JR.: Thomas, head of the U. A. W., is being urged to broadcast that he was promised an important post by the Republicans if he'd endorse Willkie . . . MAE MURRAY: Loretta Young, who surprised the observers at the Rainbow Room by leaving her guests to walk across the room to your table, explained that she did it because, when she was seven, Loretta was given her first Hollywood opportunity in a movie in which you starred.

COLE PORTER: Ethel Merman and the chorus line of "Panama Hattie" already have written a risqué parody to your "Let's Be Buddies," one of the songs in the show. That's why the onstage laughter when they all sing your original . . . SEC. FRANK KNOX: At 8 p. m. Sunday night Portsmouth, N. H., had its first air raid practice. There was a five-minute blackout, during which civilians ducked into air raid shelters and air wardens patrolled the streets. They'll continue these drills once each month . . . EDDY DUCHIN: Buddy de Sylva could have signed the dance team of Rosario and Antonio, who appear with you and Carol Bruce at the Waldorf—but only on condition that he forego his lawsuit against Miss Bruce.

RKO: William Saroyan, who has been refusing your offers of more than $50,000 for the movie rights of "Time of Your Life," applied to the Chase Natl. Bank for a $15,000 loan with which to produce his new play, "Sweeney in the Trees." He was turned down. That's why he returned to Frisco, announcing: "Frisco is wonderful, N. Y. should be in Frisco" . . . SINCLAIR LEWIS: At the Ogden Reid party for Willkie, Dorothy Thompson at last was heard to say: "As sure as my name is Dorothy Lewis" . . . CORDELL HULL: Henri-Haye, Vichy's Ambassador to Washington, attended the rodeo Sunday night. He watched the wild animals running free, then roped into capture and finally killed. "Here at least," lamented the Ambassador, "I thought I'd find distraction."

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Perhaps this column's traditional custom of permitting a gentleman only one denial (or evasion) of a news story is not aggressive enough for these treaty-breaking days . . . A few weeks ago we asked Prexy C. F. Adams of Suffolk Downs to confirm a report that Bing Crosby had made an offer for the Bees.

"FOUR OR FIVE FELLOWS have been making a lot of talk about the Bees," was the answer made by Mr. Adams. "But I haven't yet seen the color of their money." This did not exclude Mr. Crosby as a prospective buyer, and we followed it with a question about the Bing . . . No, Mr. Crosby wasn't one of the "four or five fellows," Mr. Adams declared.

OF COURSE, "BUSINESS INFORMATION" has a comparable status with the well known brand of red-pencilled bulletins served by the European hostiles—in which "military information" is guarded . . . If it wouldn't be too embarrassing, however, we have a further question to pop to Mr. Adams—publicly.

IF BING CROSBY AND A GROUP of associates, including a Boston business man, have not made an offer for the Boston Bees, why did Mr. Adams confer in Chicago with the baseball boss, Judge Landis? . . . It doesn't seem likely that Mr. Adams was proposing to retire from the management of Suffolk Downs to return to the helm of the losing Bees.

WE LEAN TO THE BELIEF that Mr. Adams was attempting to qualify Mr. Crosby as an acceptable baseball magnate, in spite of his ownership of the "toy track" at Del Mar, California. . . . (Colonel Egan brought up this possible bugaboo to a Crosby purchase in his Monday column) . . . The Bing won't traffic with subterfuge in business, and won't let a straw-man hold his stock . . . So the deal is probably cold if the Judge said "No!" on the movie star as a magnate . . . Did he, Mr. Adams?

SHEILA BARRETT showed her fondness for Joe Rines, the Boston bandleader, by travelling to Providence from New York to appear with Joe at the Providence Biltmore last night—as a favor . . . Boston will not see Sheila in 1940, as she leaves next week for six "concerts" in Texas, and has bookings in Florida thereafter . . . The Mayfair's "theatrical guest night" furnished Mitzi Green her most appreciative audience to date . . . Fellow-actors wouldn't let the blonde lass leave the floor.

DRAMA CRITIC PEGGY DOYLE has a homing-pigeon whose home is the Warner Brothers publicity office in New York, but the homing-pigeon won't go home . . . Peggy's bird was one of a flock of pigeons loosed here in Boston after a trip by express from New York . . . Each of the Boston movie critics had been sent a pigeon.

AND ALL BUT PEGGY'S PIGEON have fluttered away, back where they belong, with a message tied to their legs . . . Peggy's pigeon simply won't do what he—or she—is supposed to do . . . The bird has been given three chances to get back where he belongs, and, incidentally, to uphold the universal reputation of homing-pigeons for being able to find a way home . . . The pigeon takes off with a whirr of wings, circles Peggy's home in South Russell street, and zooms back to Miss Doyle's window-sill . . . Warners have given her permission to adopt it.

WHEN MARK KING'S NUMBER came up in the draft roulette, he telegraphed his brother John to set aside a steam-heated barracks for him . . . John is superintendent of the job at Fort Devens . . . The nightclubs are anticipating a prosperous three weeks . . . Halloween affords a "holiday" this week, Election Day night is quinquennial boom night, and Armistice Day annually brings about a spurt in business . . . All three coming week-ends will attract football crowds, too . . . It might be a good idea to make reservations early.

PHYLLIS BROOKS IN SEABISCUIT FILM

By Louella O. Parsons

Phyllis Brooks

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Often wondered what happened to that technicolor short Dave Butler made on the great Seabiscuit right after the pride of the turf won the $100,000 pot at Santa Anita. Well, my friend, it was so good that it has been held all this time for a much more important RKO picture, temporarily titled "Blood Will Tell." In the meantime Dave has been a guest at the famous Charlie Howard breeding farms near San Francisco photographing Seabiscuit's colts and getting plenty of additional material.

All this footage will be background of a feature length racing opus with an all-star cast. Particularly interesting to me is word that Phyllis Brooks (who is one of the blonde highlights in Cole Porter's "Panama Hattie" opening tonight) will get one of the top roles. RKO has never relinquished her contract and they are planning to bring her back to Hollywood on a bandwagon not unlike the campaign launched by 20th Century Fox for Betty Grable.

JUDY GARLAND
Winninger and Hedy Lamarr

WHAT A DAY IT WAS! Stewart's "Gladys" . . . His draft letter came up an hour after M. G. M. announced it was officially going into "The Ziegfeld Girl" lineup. That's what you think, said Jimmy, planning from ear to ear "Hattie will be going into Uncle Sam's lineup first." Be that as it may, the popular and lanky Stewart has been in and out of "Ziegfeld Girl" so often he should feel like Flanagan. But with fate and Uncle Sam willing, the minute he finishes "Come Live With Me" with Hedy Lamarr he'll start making love to Lana Turner in the Folies musical which also includes Judy Garland, Tony Martin, Charles

MY TWO blonde stars, Ilona Massey and Binnie Barnes, who have gone over like a million in New York, will be in the same picture when they return to the Coast. Binnie has been signed to do the comedy honors in "New Wine," the Franz Schubert operetta in which Ilona will be the prima donna. It's a good box-office move on the part of Dr. William Sekeley, who is producing the musicale with Alexander Korda, if you ask me. Speaking of Binnie—she earned a lot of new friends the other night. After our midnight show she and Mike Frankovich went up to 125th street to make an appearance at the Apollo Theater for Bill Robinson, who was staging a benefit performance there with members of his race for London sufferers.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD AND NEW YORK: Saw Gloria Swanson, looking surprisingly young, dancing at the Stork Club. She has been campaigning for Willkie and was accompanied by the Willkie radio expert; Addison Randall was with Ruth Taylor and Paul Zuckerman.

CAL SWANSON of the J. Walter Thompson office was celebrating the arrival of a daughter. He phoned Danny Danker the good news; our backstage telephone buzzes busily for Brenda Joyce—but her heart is in Hollywood and she will probably wed Owen Ward when she returns from her trip.

SABU is such a hit with his song "I Want to Be a Sailor" I hope they let him sing in a picturesome day. Don't know whether Ed Orr works harder with his swell limitations, or dodging the New York debaters or his trail.

JANE PICKENS, once Eddie Duchin's heart, was at the Stork in a party including Mima Wallis, who is having a time for herself here; Fred Astaire is in town very enthusiastic over his new picture "Second Chances."

MISCHA AUER was at the preview of the Dutch picture with Maria Montez; Bill Gargan got such notices for his work in "They Knew What They Wanted" he'll get co-starring billing with Martha Scott in "Cheers for Miss Bishop"; Mary Taylor, Dorothy Di Frasso's pretty niece, is representing Stage Magazine on the Coast; Travis Banton heads to Chicago with Carmen Miranda's complete wardrobe for "Road to Rio." Carmen is playing a short engagement there and 20th can't wait for fittings as the picture starts Nov. 11th.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

EVERY WOMAN loves a bargain... no matter whether she's a society leader with a large bankroll or a stenographer who has to budget her weekly earnings... so it was not surprising that the Yankee Trading Post opened yesterday with more hustle and bustle than prevailed even at draft headquarters...

Everything from an enormous Old Glory, priced at $6, to a tiny antique ring could be found in the varied assortment of items on sale at this unusual benefit for the Children's Hospital... Four floors of the building at 573 Boylston st. have been utilized for the two-day affair, which continues today with a fresh assortment of goods.

Among the many bargain hunters were Mrs. George Monks, who purchased an imposing Russian Samovar which will undoubtedly occupy a conspicuous place in the home of her daughter, Olga, who married Constantin Pertzoff, member of a Russian noble family...

Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield bought some very fancy antique hangings, and Mrs. George Baty Blake, Jr., mother of an infant, carried off a darling little hand-painted child's rocking chair... Her sister, Mrs. John Coburn, was one of the many attractive post-deb and young marrieds helping the cause by serving as "runners"...

Their job was to make change, wrap parcels and run errands for the women who presided as salesladies... Mrs. William C. Cox, chairman of the welfare committee of the hospital, and one of the many women responsible for the success of the sale, did a rushing business selling rugs and draperies... She was comfortably dressed for the job in a simple black dress, sneakers and white gloves... Her mother, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, purchased a novel inlaid mahogany gentleman's shaving mirror, which she presented to Mrs. Cox for the latter's hubby...

Orchid Corsage Mystery Unsolved

KAY WINTHROP, who has just bought a new house in Hamilton, did some shopping yesterday for attractive furniture to make it homey... one of her proudest purchases was a chaise longue with dainty carved mahogany legs...

Mrs. Richard Thompson had a workout at making quick change as cashier on the second floor, and Mrs. Alfred Kidder, 2d, was an expert salesgirl in the lamp department...

Still unsolved at closing time last night was the mystery of the beautiful orchid corsage which was delivered to Mrs. H. Parker Whittington, one of the chairmen of the Trading Post... enclosed with the orchid was a card bearing a huge question mark...

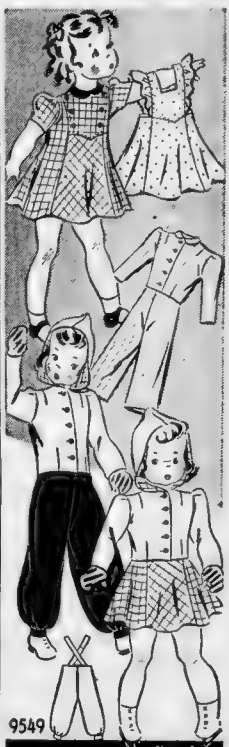

A taupe wool dress, enhanced by a beaver hat and muff, fashioned the modish costume worn by Mrs. William Brace Pratt, who was responsible for spreading the news of the sale, as well as for the artistic arrangement of all the myriad articles on display...

Group Kept Busy Sewing Snacks

MISS ELIZABETH LELAND and her staff of helpers did a land office business serving snacks to hungry workers and customers alike... Resting over coffee and sandwiches after a busy morning of browsing around among the many antique treasures were Babby Gilpin Yerxa and Mrs. Joe Coletti, both dressed in modish tweed outfits... Mrs. Michael Farmer donned a yellow oilcloth apron to protect her gray tweed dress as she ladled hot soup from a huge tureen with diamond studded hands...

MRS. GEORGE BATY BLAKE, JR. (left), and her sister, Mrs. John Coburn, arrive to do their bit for the Yankee Trading Post which benefited the Children's Hospital. They are the former Rosemary and Eleanor Shaw of Needham.

Screen Tests

Debs to Help Hospital

Fair goers will have an opportunity to see how their favorite society girls compare with Hollywood's glamour girls at a showing of screen tests of Boston debs at the three-day Christmas Arcade to be held next month for the benefit of the Robert Breck Brigham Hospital.

Mrs. Alexander H. Ladd, Jr., is chairman of the arcade committee which is making elaborate plans for raising funds for the important research work in cause and cure of arthritis that is conducted by their hospital.

The interior of John Hancock hall will be transformed into a street of miniature shops where Christmas shoppers can find all sorts of tempting gifts. The fair opens on Nov. 13.

Committee members include Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, secretary, Mrs. Howard K. Thompson, treasurer, Mrs. Marcus Beebe, Mrs. Alfred H. B. Peabody, Mrs. Samuel H. Wolcott, Jr., Mrs. John M. Hall, Mrs. O. H. P. Baldwin, Mrs. Sherwin Bidger, Mrs. Lloyd T. Brown, Mrs. Richard Baker, Mrs. C. Rodgers Burgin, and Mrs. Thomas W. Chesterfield.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

I'M in the dog-house. All because I told Young America—and its collective Mon 'n' Dad—that they couldn't kick the law in the teeth. No, I'm not sore. Just plenty concerned, you should be when you've heard the story. Here it is: About 20 years ago, a 15-year-old Californian youngster hanged himself. Reason? He hadn't been "bid" for his High School Fraternity.

Stupid, hysterical? Maybe. But sensitive, lonely youngsters can be like that, especially when poverty is the cause of discrimination. Then the same old thing happened in the same old American way. Public interest flagged, parents became indifferent. The racket went on. Rich kids were rushed, poor kids ignored. Increasing thousands of young Americans learning to defy the law, thumb their noses at democracy.

"Yes, we know," cried the teachers. "We realize that youngsters of High School age can't stand the strain of social, financial and racial discrimination which college men can take in their stride. It's all wrong. But what can we do about it?"

"The youngsters practice countless evasions. The rushes and imitations are going on, right under our noses—but they call themselves 'Sewing Societies,' 'Benevolent' or 'Amusement' Clubs.

"Moreover, the parents back them up. They're as excited as the youngsters at the prospect of joining. They let them meet at home. Supply the money for initiation dues, sometimes as high as $15.00—with $10.00 contributions toward each dance. Endless expense for formal, taxis and orchids. How can we fight a combination like that?"

AND YOU have to admit they've tried. In many California high schools, registration cards bear two pledges to be signed by pupils and parent, promising, on their honor, to "uphold the state law" which forbade such memberships. Practically every card is duly signed; yet before the ink is dry, Sonny and Sis are being bid, strutting in glory or sulking in adolescent despair.

CONTEST EDITOR'S CORNER

Some contestants have written in wondering whether or not we have received their answers. They seem to doubt that the mails have brought their weekly series. To those folks I say: "Have a little faith in Uncle Sam!"

Your Uncle Sam has been carrying the mail for years and has been doing a right smart job of it. However, if you wish to be super-cautious, you can send your entry by Registered Mail. There is no necessity for incurring this expense, but we will be glad to sign the receipt.

But better still, if you enclose a self-addressed postcard in your envelope we will file your entry and make a note on your postcard, indicating that that particular weekly entry has been received and has been filed. We will then mail the postcard to you.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This at Home

Saves You Much Money, and It's So Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother probably used, but, for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable, for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it. It's no trouble. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar in 1 cup water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—a child could do it. Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This makes a full pint of truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And you'll say it's really amazing, for quick action. You can feel it take hold promptly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a compound containing Norwegian pine and palatable guaiac, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Smart Set Fashions

The Lady Is a Siren

SINCE black leads all others as a fashionable color this fall . . . it's not unnatural that some smart stylist would foster the revival of color accents that repeat the sirenish trappings and ideas of a time when only sirens wore black . . . So now you may find in the shops lip cheek rouge and nail enamel whose vivid tones, with a slight sultry cast, owe their inspiration, variously, to a lace-trimmed pink satin garter, a Mardi Gras mask, and scarlet slippers, which, too, were once the sole prerogative of the vamp. You can find them trickily boxed in cellophane, as the lady who is obviously a siren shows, and the box has clasped around it a real pink satin, black lace-trimmed garter! And it all is contrived to introduce to you some marvelously flattering accents to black . . . as we said in the beginning!

Good Coffee For You!

By MARTHA LEE
Does your coffee pass the "second cup" test? If it does, congratulations, for it must be good. Try the test at your table tonight and if the words are "No thank you" to your "Have another cup of coffee?" query, give yourself a coffee clinic in your kitchen after dinner, alone with your convenience, your coffee pot, and your coffee canister.

Look into your conscience—have you been careless in your coffee-making? Look into your coffee pot—is it as clean as it should be? Look into your coffee canister—have you been using a teaspoon instead of a tablespoon for measuring?

Americans like coffee so much that every coffee-drinker in the country usually consumes the first cup set before him. But a cup of coffee must be "perfect" to pass the second cup test.

WATCH THE CLOCK

If your coffee tastes like that made by the early Turks, it's probably like theirs was, "black as soot and as bitter." Blame bitter brew on over-brewing and chalk that fault up to carelessness, for coffee should be in contact with water a definite length of time depending on the type and the capacity of the coffee-maker. So be a clock-watcher when coffee-making.

CLEAN THE COFFEE POT

A lick and a promise is the most coffee pots get at the sink. Yet the cleanliness of your coffee pot has as much to do with the coffee you make as the coffee you use. Scrub scour and scald your coffee pot. Here are the rules for cleaning various types of makers:

- 1—Empty grounds from coffee basket as soon as coffee has finished percolating.
- 2—Rinse coffee basket, stem, basket cover, valve, and pot with hot water. Use a brush to clean stem and spout.
- 3—Do not immerse an electric percolator in water.
- 4—If percolator is of the valve type, take the valve apart for cleaning.
- 5—Once a week fill the percolator to its normal capacity with soapy water. Allow to percolate 10 to 12 minutes. Rinse thoroughly.
- 6—Follow general cleaning directions.

Vacuum Coffee Makers:

- 1—Empty grounds from upper bowl as soon as coffee has returned to the lower bowl.
- 2—Use a curved brush for cleaning the bowl if it has a narrow neck. Clean funnel with a bottle brush.
- 3—Follow general cleaning directions.

Filter Cloths:

After each use rinse thoroughly in clear cold water and keep submerged between usings in cold water. Never allow to dry. Filter cloths should be renewed at least every two weeks.

DRIP MAKERS:

- 1—Remove basket with grounds as soon as water has dripped through. Rinse with hot water.
- 2—Follow general cleaning directions.

COFFEE POTS:

Follow general cleaning directions. The teaspoon instead of the tablespoon method of measuring the coffee pot is responsible for about forty per cent of the coffee (which passes the second cup test in this country). A heaping tablespoon of coffee for every cup (or better still 2 level tablespoons)—if you keep your coffee pot clean and your eye on the clock—will make the coffee drinkers at your table pass their cups over for more. And when that happens you'll rate "A" in the coffee-making class.

And don't forget that coffee makes a delicious flavor for desserts. Use the same care in making the coffee you use for cooking purposes that you would for drinking—and see the result.

COFFEE JELLY

- 2 tsp. granulated gelatin
 - 1/2 cup cold water
 - 3 cups freshly made coffee
 - 1/2 cup sugar
- Soften gelatin in cold water about 5 minutes. Add hot coffee and sugar, and stir until dissolved. Pour in mold and chill until set. Unmold and serve with plain or whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

'Pick-Up Masque' Cream Proves Champagne for Skin

By ARLINE GOULD

IF YOU have too few beauty "ups" and too many beauty "downs" . . . if you look really lovely one day, and admit you look like an old bat the next . . . then you need something to help tide your complexion over . . . to smooth out its tiredness, its lines so you attain months and years of beauty "ups" with no "downs" except in the privacy of your own most private place!

We've been hearing some almost incredible things about a pick-up masque in a certain exclusive, custom-made (but not prohibitive) cosmetic salon. So-and-so, who always looks so smooth yet works so hard, simply depends on this pick-up masque! She uses it at least four or five times a week . . . for it's that kind of a steady aid, which is always dependable.

This is literally champagne for your complexion . . . because it has the exhilarating properties of old bubbly without the let-down. It satin-smooths the tired, crumpled look . . . it stimulates a freshening glow in the tissues . . . and it has a refining action which is cumulative, meaning the more you use it, the finer your skin!

Made on a balsam base, this is a really strawberry-mousse-like cream to be used this way: Smooth on some eye cream, then cover your face, to an area of an inch around your eyes, and all over the throat with the rich strawberry-rose cream.

If you can place restful, soaked pads on your eyes and lie down 20 minutes the better.

Ten to 20 minutes is all you need depending on your skin, and you'll get proper advice on this when you investigate the cream.

Echoes From the Servants' Quarters

A Mysterious Enemy

Hercules, Jr.

THE HONEYMOON was wonderful. At least, thought Virginia Boyd, she had to remember. And it wasn't that she didn't still love her husband of a month. It was just that the shine of her marriage was being rubbed off with awful speed. It was being rubbed off, not by cruelty, but by kindness.

She wondered what other girls did when confronted with a situation of this sort. They probably got vicious looks on their faces, flamed their lips, and snarled at their husbands. "Your mother simply must be told to go."

But she couldn't say that to Bob. She couldn't bear to hurt him, and besides, he'd think she was crazy. Any newly-married girl, he'd think, could welcome a mother-in-law who stepped in and cooked practically all the meals and asked nothing in return—not even a name.

That was just the thing that irritated Virginia. If Mrs. Boyd had had to live with them she could have made the best of it. But Mrs. Boyd had a lovely old home in New Jersey and a substantial income. She had taken a small apartment around the corner from Bob and Virginia simply because she wanted to.

"I must see that these children get started properly," she said to the friends who thought it too wonderful for her to sacrifice her good times for "the children's" comfort. Bob and Virginia had been married exactly five weeks and had been settled in their little apartment for three of those weeks, when Virginia decided that the time had come for a change.

It was an unfortunate dinner that brought things to a head. She had prepared the whole meal by herself and it would have been all right if everything hadn't been fried up and warmed-over. But then she had started cooking at four o'clock and Bob didn't get home until six. She had known that it was too early to start dinner, but she had also known that if she waited until five, Mrs. Boyd could be in taking things out of her hands.

At exactly five, when Virginia was struggling with a wayward roast, she had heard the doorbell ring and had answered it to find her mother-in-law. Mrs. Boyd kissed Virginia's cheek and then walked past her into the kitchen.

"Why, my dear child," she said as she looked at the table that was almost collapsing from the number of pots and pans it was supporting, "what in the world are you doing?"

"I'm getting dinner," said Virginia grimly.

"At this time of day? Why dear, those potatoes won't be fit to eat by the time Bob gets home. I'm afraid we'll just have to put those away for a potato salad tomorrow, and peel some more for tonight."

"No!" exclaimed her daughter-in-law fiercely.

"What, dear?"

Helping Hands

"I said, no! I'm going to get this meal by myself. And I'm going to serve those potatoes."

She knew it was childish and she felt like a cad when she saw Mrs. Boyd's puzzled and hurt face. But somehow it seemed important that she should get this meal all by herself. It even seemed necessary that she serve the potatoes which she knew would be soggy and unappetizing.

"IT'S VIRGINIA!"

That, she guessed later, was her mistake. Bob had been sweet when he came in. He'd kissed her with definite enthusiasm, but his face fell when he started to eat.

"What happened to the roast, mother?" he asked in a puzzled voice. Virginia knew that never before in his life had he questioned his mother's cooking.

"It isn't my roast, darling," his mother answered. "It's Virginia's. She prepared the whole meal by herself and I think she did very well."

Mrs. Boyd hadn't meant to be cruel. Virginia knew that, but being given the credit for this horrible meal was a mixed blessing.

"It's a swell dinner," Bob lied, but he didn't finish anything on his plate. If he couldn't bear to eat her cooking while he was still so much in love with her, Virginia shuddered to think of the day—probably years hence—when Mrs. Boyd finally abdicated as queen of the kitchen.

That was why she sent Bob and his mother to the movies and sat down to write an urgent S O S to her own mother. Betty, as Virginia had always called her, was a different breed of mother. She'd been in business since her daughter was six, and she certainly hadn't time to step into her daughter's quarrel as anything but an infrequent but very welcome visitor.

Her mother, decided Virginia, would know just what to do. She'd talk to Mrs. Boyd and point out to her that young couples should be left alone. The thought of Betty kept Virginia going for the next week. She had explained everything in her letter and she waited eagerly for her mother's reply. It came on a morning that had been disastrous. She had mentioned that they didn't have a moment to themselves and Bob had taved that she didn't appreciate his mother, and had departed without kissing her goodby. And then, the life-saving wife arrived. Betty would be in that afternoon. She could stay for a week, which meant that she was sacrificing half of her vacation to straighten out her daughter's life.

The minute she saw her mother step off the train, Virginia knew that everything was going to be all right. You could tell by looking at her that Betty had the modern view point.

the recipe?"

"I'll do better than that. I'll make them tomorrow night." She ignored her daughter's stricken gaze. "But I'll want something in return. You'll have to teach me to make this wonderful sauce." Mrs. Boyd promised while Virginia's spirits sank. She had never suspected that her mother was a thwarted housewife. She had always seemed so happy in business, but as the week went by and Betty spent more and more time in the kitchen, Virginia decided that you never could tell. The dinner table discussions resembled more and more a recipe book.

There was nothing, she decided, that she could do. She'd just have to wait until her mother left and then figure out something for herself. Her mother, she reluctantly admitted, was worse than no help.

Betty was to leave on a Monday and on the Saturday that preceded it she shoed Virginia and Bob off to the Fair. It was the only good her mother had done, Virginia thought. She and Bob had so much fun and even with the thousands of people around them, they were the most alone they'd been in weeks.

They were exhausted but happy when they got home. And then

Betty said. She seemed to take for granted that their silence was due to loss. But her mother thought the adjustment wasn't just right and she'd been in an interior decorator only 11 months out of the Army. "I'd do something different and fix it up for you."

"She's simply wonderful," breathed Mrs. Boyd. "I'd never in the world thought of placing things the way she does."

Oh, but what a wonderful help. I really think you have a fair for this sort of thing.

They both ignored their children and continued to compliment each other all through the dinner they had prepared.

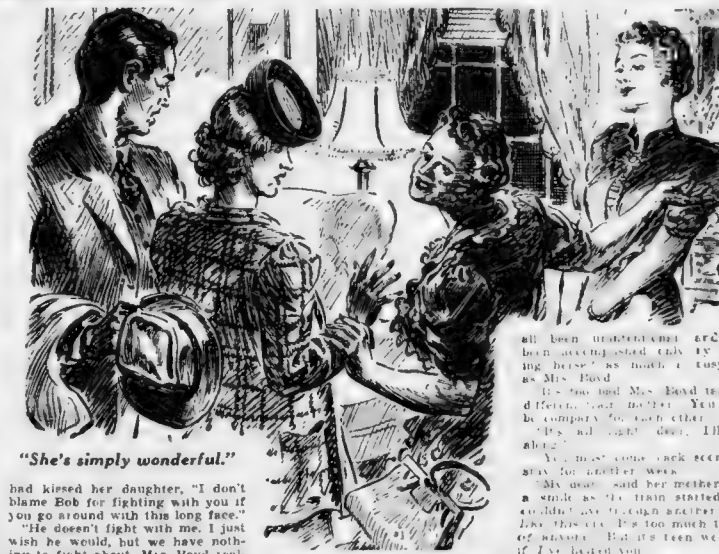

Bob didn't say much until he and Virginia were in their own room.

"I think they'd better get," he said suddenly, out of silence.

"Who, dear?" inquired Virginia innocently.

"Our mothers. Oh, of course. We'll always be glad to have them visit, but not too often. We've know what they did. Virginia? They threw away my life and humiliated me."

Virginia went to the train with her mother. She'd been feeling a little bit guilty. She couldn't thank Betty for helping her when it had had kissed her daughter, "I don't blame Bob for fighting with you if you go around with this long face."

"He doesn't fight with me. I just wish he would, but we have nothing to fight about. Mrs. Boyd really likes me and I like her, but if she doesn't quit being so nice and helpful, Bob and I will end up in divorce."

"Will Mrs. Boyd be over for dinner?"

"Mother, if Mrs. Boyd didn't come over there would be no dinner."

So there were the four of them, gathered around the table that night. Bob had been glad to see Betty and so everyone was in fine spirits. Mrs. Boyd, not so much because of Betty's arrival, but more because of a successfully boiled steak.

Virginia could put her finger on the moment when she had lost some of her new hope. It had been at the end of the meal when they were all complimenting Mrs. Boyd on the dessert.

"I have a simply marvelous recipe for French pancakes," Betty confided. "Do you know how to make them, Mrs. Boyd?"

"No I don't, but I'd certainly like to learn. Would you give me they walked into the apartment they'd fixed up by themselves, and their faces fell. Everything was different. All the furniture had been completely changed around and it wasn't the name at all.

The chairs they had spent hours placing were in totally different parts of the room. A picture that Bob hung at the foot of a finger-nail had been banished.

Ohio State Charges Snavelly With a Cheat

A SINISTER CHARGE HAS BEEN MADE by the A. D. of Ohio State University. Mr. L. W. St. John accuses Cornell's Carl Snavelly of wigwagging signals to his team from the bench last Saturday. He says Snavelly semaphored with a rolled-up newspaper in "gross violation of the rule" (No. 11, Article 1, Page 51) which reads, "There shall be no coaching either by substitutes or by any other person not participating in the game."

AUSTEN LAKE

This implies to Snavelly a cheat, fraud and malfeasance. But it's widely done!

St. John testifies to the Eastern intercollegiate commissioner that he and a certain Dr. Earl P. Maxwell squatted opposite the Cornell bench and watched Snavelly through binoculars, being "able to forecast each Cornell play from manipulation of the paper cylinder in Snavelly's hand."

Them's waspish words! Furthermore, St. John states that the Ohio coach forewarned referee "Red" Friesell that Snavelly was addicted to directing the Cornell team from the bench and nothing was done about it.

But I ask, how in the exorcising, exalted name of tarnation, is any football official free to decide that a coach who twitches, fidgets and squirms on the bench is actually transmitting messages or merely has an itch? How? O, I know that many coaches waggle signals, and I'll tell you how I know! Because when a team's play-picker consistently sticks his neck up in the huddle and glares intently toward his bench, then ducks down and whispers his play, you can bet all the sun-tan in Miami that he is getting orders from the bench.

BUT WAIT A MINUTE! There is no legalism in the football code to prevent a player from gazing toward his bench. There is no rule restraining a coach, his assistants or his spare athletes from writhing and shuddering clean out of their shirts, or from fumbling with gadgets. They can bring a full set of navy signal flags to the game if they want to, and no football official can say whether a coach is having an emotional spasm or telling his quarterback to run Old X-49 through a gap in the enemy line. You can't convict a man on suspicion!

It is a matter of coaching conscience! As one nationally known coach told me recently, "Sure I coach from the sidelines. If the other coaches on my schedule would quit, I'd quit too. But they won't. I've got to coach to safeguard my interests."

So, here's a rule which can be flouted or observed at the whim of the football teacher without fear or penalty. It's unfair to the morally rigid coaches who observe the rule. So what?

There are only two ways to correct it, (1) place the coaches and assistants in a jenny pit such as they employ at the greyhound tracks, during the progress of the game, or (2) abolish the rule and let the coaches direct the play from the bench.

Bear in mind, at the present reading, the rule forbids coaching, not alone by the coach or players, but by any other person not participating in the game. Yet every week a volunteer jury of cheer leaders line the gridiron and roar advice through their megaphones, "Look out for a pass, Jerry," or kindred warnings from sheer exuberance and anxiety. Would you, as an official, in the critical heat of battle, halt the game and impose a 15 yard fine against the offending yell-conductor's varsity? No? Neither would I!

THERE HAS, TO MY KNOWLEDGE, been only one penalty for sideline coaching inflicted in a major game this season. It happened

HARVARD WIN OVER TIGER DEPENDS ON M'KINNEY

Loren Mackinney, the new Crimson blocking back, will carry Harvard hopes of victory on his broad shoulders when they face Princeton in the Stadium Saturday.

Can Harvard twist the Tiger's tail?

The outcome of the game may well depend on how soon Mackinney gets the knack of his new blocking back position.

In the heavy Tuesday scrimmage, the Carolinian was repeatedly applauded by the coaches for his bone-breaking blocks.

Loren is not very familiar with the new assignments as yet, but when he is the Cantabs are going to have a blocking back who is on a par with Cliff Wilson.

CREDIT BELONGS TO FESLER

Calling the plays on the defense and offense, handling the punting assignment, backing up the line, serving as the No. 1 pass receiver and blocker—these are the duties that Loren Mackinney, 190 junior from North Carolina has assumed. It would not be far wrong to say that he is the only real natural on the Harvard team.

Not so many years ago, the Harvard end coach, Wes Fesler, handled the same duties at Ohio State that the new Harvard star will handle. Fesler has been Mackinney's coach for the past two years and should receive a word of credit for developing Mac. It was Fesler who drilled and drilled Loren in kicking until this year he has blossomed out as the best punter ever to wear the Crimson colors.

WALSTEIN SHINES

Dick Harlowe now has two capable backup linemen which he may use more or less alternately against the Tigers. In the ranking quartet at the present time there are two juniors, a senior and a soph. It may be that Harlowe will start this unit composed of Mackinney at blocker, back Fian Lee at wingback, Don McNeil at tail back, and Capt. Joe Gardella at blocking back.

The second flight of backup linemen includes tried material with the exception of Gordie Lyle at wingback. Heiden is the blocker in the "B" backfield with Chasley Spreyer at tailback, Lyle at wing, and Waldestein at the blocking berth.

HOOD AERIAL DEFENSE

As the shadows darkened on Soldier's field the white ball was put into play as Coach Wes Fesler impersonated the Bengal's air general, Dave Allender. The Cantabs have exhibited a fairly good aerial defense so far this year, but as yet, haven't had to withstand a "total" barrage from any one team.

If the Crimson players can stop the Princeton air weapons, Harvard may find, to its surprise, that the Tiger can be caged and the Harvards will have hung up their first major win of the season.

SPORT-O-GRIMES

Eddie Shore, old No. 2 himself, opens his first full season as a minor league owner-player-manager tomorrow night when his Indians tangle with Bun Cook's Rhode Island Reds in the Eastern States Coliseum in West Springfield. So, the hockey season is here again.

If Stanley "Bucky" Harris lands that Cleveland job, he'll be succeeded at Washington by the manager of the Casey Stengel type, one who can and will work diligently with youngsters. Pres Clark Griffith is building a young club, which requires a hustling manager, rather than a field general.

Billy Murphy, who stepped into football coaching cold, when Tom Scanlon died, is doing a great job at Brighton High School. Unbeaten last year, his charges surprised everyone, but Brightonians when they stopped Skipper Harry McDonough and his South Boston High mates. Capt. Paul Bradbury is a standout, a real triple threat.

The Connors and the Dubetys are planning to vacation at Sea Island, Ga. After their sojourn at the popular Georgia resort, Joe and Eddie will visit Tom Yawkey at Georgetown, N. C. Mrs. Joe Connors, by the way, has taken up golf.

After agreeing to work the M. I. T.-Faneuil game last Saturday, the officials walked out when they landed berths which paid more money. Carroll Getchell of Harvard saved the day by contacting Tim McAuliffe, who dug up three more officials and handled the game. Elmer Ward, the 1930 New England amateur champion, took Emory P. Stratton and Frank C. Craven over the jumps at Charles River last Sunday. Them that has, gets, according to Stratton and Craven.

Joe Shekeret's Holy Cross coach, can still see Dick High of Brown rushing through the slot in his Crusader line left vacant when the guard pulled out. Dick's ability to get into the Holy Cross backfield was responsible for Brown's victory. The Idaho game cost the Eastern College Athletic Association $2200. But money was made last Saturday with St. Anselm.

BILL GRIMES.

Huskies' Coaches Go in for Toys

Northeastern's varsity football players rubbed their eyes in amazement when the coaches appeared at Huntington Field with a box full of toys.

The Husky footballers, battered and bruised after their game at Upsala last Saturday, thought for a moment that they were going back to kindergarten. The bundle contained a drum, a toy tea-wagon and numerous other items to excite juvenile interests.

Coach Jimmy Dunn, Harold Kopp and Johnny Wood were quick to explain, however, that they had found the box in the middle of the street and were holding it until it could be claimed by the owner.

Some of the footballers had to be forcibly restrained from beating the drum in anticipation of a victory against Tufts on Saturday.

Martin Whips Montanez

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (INS)—George Martin of Boston turned in an eight-round upset victory over Iván Montanez of Puerto Rico in the feature event at Broadway Arena.

There were no knock-downs, although Montanez tried several times to unhook his "standing" punch. Martin proved the aggressor, constantly moving in against the more experienced Montanez. It was Montanez's first start since last January, when he lost to Henry Armstrong for the title in the Garden.

SECRETARY _____

DATE 1940 _____

Gen. Needham, speaking on the subject "Preparedness for the Unexpected" at a joint meeting of the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police and the New England Police Revolver League held at Oak Hill Country Club, Fitchburg, said:

"We are now facing conditions where a lack of properly trained marksmen may prove serious. For the common defense of our communities, we must have not only organized state guards, but also a citizenry educated in the arts of handling a gun and able to shoot with accuracy."

URGENT ALL-ENTER

"The William Randolph Hearst Citizen Marksmanship Competition fits into the defense scheme most timely. I not only endorse this far-reaching competition, devoted as it is to attracting new and better rifle shooters, but I also strongly urge every boy and man in New England to take an active part in the championships to be held this winter."

General Needham's talk was the highlight of a program replete with plans to perfect home defenses. More than 200 police chiefs, mayors and selectmen of New England communities were present and lent their full approval not only to the Hearst Rifle Shoot but also to a plan to foster publicly-owned open air ranges in every town and city in this section.

OFFER SERVICES

Offering their services as instructors in marksmanship to civilians, home guards and firemen, without remuneration and as a civic duty, were the members of the New England Police Revolver League, headed by H. J. Robinson of Boston, executive vice president of the league and its founder, and Captain Louis E. Lutz, league secretary.

This organization, composed of crack pistol and rifle experts, put on an exhibition of indoor shooting to show the lessons in care and precaution which represent the first principles of shooting.

Each of the experts present was high in praise of Mr. Hearst's movement toward furthering rifle shooting and each, in turn, assured the Hearst committee that every ranking shooter in New England would be in the Hearst lists during the coming winter.

AUSTEN LAKE SAYS:

three weeks ago when a coach, in a fit of exasperation, jumped off his bench and shouted to his defensive centre, "For Pete's sake, Dick, back up that tackle!" That was obvious!

Yet at another major varsity stadium a season ago there was a loudspeaker system through which the game announcer kept a rapid fire of comment such as, "That big guard, 57, is doing a whale of a job" or, "Watch No. 26 of the visitors. He's in every play." Opposing coaches squawked! They suspected that the announcer, from his observation post, was conducting an espionage system. So they cut it out!

An alumnus of a noted football college in New York City confessed to me that his coach had a unique device of circumventing the rule (No. 5, Section 2, Page 18) which forbids a substitute from communicating with his teammates until one play has been run off. Plainly the object of this rule is to prevent a coach from designating a key-play at a crucial moment. "We had the desired play-number chalked on the heel of our boot," sniggered the alumnus.

Personally, I don't believe that any coach, however he may pare his scruples on the sideline-signalling rule, attempts to direct every play his team makes on the field. Where such a coach flouts the rule he may designate only six or a dozen plays all afternoon—those in the critical spots of the game where his side is in scoring position or needs a yard for a first down. That's all that is necessary!

The fact is that many coaches do not regard sideline signalling as any more of a heinous crime, than some gypsy horse trainers do, the dynamiting of a horse with heroin or nitro-glycerine. And, without exception, all football officials refuse to chaperone a coach's antics on the bench. As Referee "Red" Friesell replied to Director St. John, "We've got enough to do watching 22 players on the field, without watching 50 other players and a dozen coaches on the bench."

One official of my acquaintance formed the habit of standing in the line of vision between a certain varsity quarterback as he extended his neck from the huddle and glanced querulously toward his coach. The more the quarterback craned his neck, the more the official screened his view. Between the halves the team's coach inquired, "Do you suspect me of coaching from the sidelines?"

"O my no," denied the official blandly. "Never entered my mind."

"Then why do you block my quarterback's vision in each huddle?" inquired the coach.

"Out of sheer Christian charity," vouchsafed the official. "I didn't want you to see his look of helpless bewilderment when trying to think too you and 16 other men."

Purists Reign at Harvard

By BILL GRIMES

If city editors refuse to use even a couple of lame lines on "Dog Bites Man" stories, why do sports editors insist, at this season of the year, upon featuring, day after day, the "collapse of football at Harvard"?

Football collapsed at Harvard before the first World War. At that time, there was some news value to such a tale. But, for the past 20 years all stories about the Crimson's addition failures should have wound up in waste baskets with the non-published "Dog Bites Man" eyes.

Harvard football drifted into the doldrums when Percy D. Haughton received and accepted a very enticing offer from Columbia University. With the departure of "P. D." for Gotham, the Crimson started on the down grade. And, it has been in "lones" ever since that year.

ONLY ONE BOSS

P. D. Haughton was the "dictator" of football at Cambridge. And, he was it. He gave orders to everyone, from the graduate manager to the cub college correspondent. And, he saw to it that his choice was elected to captaincy of some eleven.

In those days, the new captain was elected the day that the official varsity picture was taken at Norman's. The day that the great 1915 eleven was going to be officially "mugged," P. D. called Eddie Mahan on the telephone.

"Is everything set for Joe Gilman to get the election?" asked P. D.

"I guess so," replied the easy going Mahan.

"You guess so? That's no good to me. I don't want any 'brow' elected. Call off that picture until you have lined up enough votes to elect Gilman."

The picture was postponed. And,

BRIGHTON'S ROAD TO TITLE CLEAR

By SAM BROGNA

Having overcome its biggest obstacle within the past 24 hours, smooth sailing is ahead for Brighton High school, undefeated and undefeated district champions.

With its remaining games to be played against Jamaica Plain, Roxbury Memorial and Charlestown, three of the weakest teams, nothing short of a miracle can prevent the Brighton and Black aggregations from capturing the crown for the second year in a row.

Not even the slightest chance exists of another invincibility. South Boston eleven, a team which had much to boast of four opponents prior to yesterday's meeting, Coach Billy Murphy's boys came up with a reputation of plays that not only stunned the gathering but also knocked the City Pointers clean out of football's "400" class.

BETTER THAN SCORE

And even though the 13 to 12 score might indicate, the Orange and Black men were not in any way whatsoever, termed "lucky" to win. They had a complete opportunity to score but not of checked up on a clutch.

They cleanly and cleanly outplayed, outplayed outplayed outplayed, outplayed outplayed outplayed outplayed. They accomplished something that nobody thought could be done. Not even their coach, Billy Murphy.

Throughout the entire fray, the wings played cool, headsup football whereas South Boston's team was a bit over anxious and was at a heated pitch until the final whistle.

BRIGHTON PROVES RIGHT

Before the game but from the manner in which the peninsula lads had been playing, completely outplayed outplayed outplayed outplayed. The championship team established themselves with their skillful blending of power and cleverness. Capt. Paul Bradbury was his usual self and did an excellent job of passing, running and kicking. In fact, his place kick gave him mates the one point margin. He also figured in both scores, passing for the first and scoring the second time.

Lenny Coughlin, Dave Miller and Tom Cuggino, the other backs, also performed flawlessly, tossing the pigskin among themselves as though it was a game of "ten" football. The line also was at its best. George Greene, the left end was picking the air out of the air with the greatest of ease and then would turn around and flip it to one of the backs who would be tearing by.

DEBOY SCORES TWICE

Capt. Harry Huijens, Mr. Donough also played a great game only for a losing cause. He was given the extra burden during the first half, doing all the punting in place of the regular kicker, Edna Schroth, who was forced to sit out the first two periods because of a bad ankle.

John Embury, the fellow who hung up both of the lousiest touchdowns on two thrilling long runs, the first 74 yards and the other 65 also played his usual game. On both strikes he knifed his way through the center of the line and when it appeared that he was stopped, broke away and was off again.

SCORES ON 24-YARD PASS

Brighton's opening tally was made on a 24-yard pass thrown by Bradbury to Lenny Coughlin, who grabbed the flying oval two yards from payoff dirt. Paul failed to add the extra point.

The Orange and Black added their other marker shortly after the second stanza was underway. Brad culminated a short march with a two-yard center plunge. With Murphy holding, Capt. Paul placed-kicked what eventually turned out to be the winning margin.

Can't Wait Jogs In Pimlico Tuneup

Challeon, however, was out on the Pimlico oval for a noteworthy trial, breezing a mile in 1:43 with a 2400 lb. weight.

"YOU TAKE IT, CAP"—Billy Murphy, Brighton High coach, gives Captain Paul Bradbury the winning ball as a memento of Brighton's great 13-12 victory over highly rated South Boston High. The Brighton boys were undefeated last year and if Southie couldn't lick them it looks as if they'll go undefeated forever. Best of all, Murphy is a Brighton High grad himself and still lives there. Bradbury is the son of Jess, a policeman attached to Brighton station.

B. U. Future TIE LOOMS Brightened IN MAINE

Boston University leaves home for the last time this fall tomorrow night when the Terriers leave Newtonville head for Cleveland to tangle with Western Reserve next Saturday afternoon.

This will be the fourth successive meeting between these two inter-sectional rivals and to date the Terriers have yet to chalk up their first triumph.

But Hanley's green sophomores came near turning the trick last fall before losing, 19 to 14, in one of the finest offensive thrillers seen in Boston during 1939.

BOTH RECORDS EQUAL

In the last period the Terriers won to the three, the eight and the 14, but could not connect for the third touchdown which would have brought victory.

This year the Red Cats and the Terriers have the same pre-season record—three victories in four starts against teams just about equal in strength.

Western Reserve will naturally be a slight favorite playing on its home field, but the Terriers may come up with an upset.

FUTURE LOOKS FRIGHT

With two weeks of rest several of the injured veterans are back in good shape and the Hanley men will be in far better shape than they have been any time since the opening against Norwich.

In fact, Hanley is going to defy superstition and break up the starting combination that beat Cincinnati. Only Charlie Cremens, George Murphy and Ray Valas will again get the call with eight other starters who were not on the field for the opening whistle against the Beacats.

New Boxers Get Chance

An opportunity for newcomers to make the grade in amateur boxing ranks will be presented there next Monday night when the Irish-American A. A. stages an open and novice show at the Arena.

Bouts in open competition will be held in the 126, 135, 147, 160 pound and heavyweight classes, while the tyros will battle it out in the 147, 160-pound and heavyweight classes.

Only by fostering these novice and open tournaments can the Irish American A. A. keep introducing new faces to amateur ranks.

With the first round fired, it now looks as though Bowdoin and Colby co-defenders of the Maine State title, will wind up deadlocked again.

These two teams seem to have the edge on Bates and Maine and have already met—battling it out 60 minutes to a 13-13 tie.

Saturday, Colby goes to Orono to face the University of Maine and Bowdoin visits Bates.

Al McCoy is no little concerned over this game for he's afraid that his Colby outfit may run into an inspired Maine eleven. The Orono school will definitely be eliminated from the flag fight if it loses to Colby Saturday and McCoy knows that Fred Elice will have his charges at their peak.

A Bates victory over Bowdoin does not figure according to the Pine Tree grid experts. Handicapped by injuries all season, Bowdoin is finally at ten shape with five regulars returning to action. This should give the Polar Bears a tremendous lift for the Bates game.

R. I. Pures Show On Quincy Card

Rhode Island entries today swelled the list of glove performers who will battle tomorrow night at Quincy Arena in the last elimination card in Jimmy Gardner's Diamond Belt tournament.

An entire team of glove-throwers is coming up from Central Falls. R. I. to clash with the Massachusetts contenders in the 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175-pound classes.

Cadets Vision Army Beating Irish by 28-0

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 36 (AP)—According to bedsheet banners suspended from windows of cadets' rooms, Army will beat Notre Dame's eleven Saturday, anywhere from 28-0 to "a big score."

The banners, traditionally hung in the barracks area before each game with Notre Dame and Navy, made their first appearance yesterday.

Another phase of the tradition is that the sheets are "loaned" to the upperclassmen by the plebes, since cadets are accountable for all items of bed clothing.

Five 'Sponged' In Six-Horse Race at Downs

CINCINNATI, Oct. 30 (INS)—River Downs race track stewards today expressed belief that a fifth horse in Monday's six-entry fifth race might have been tampered with.

Manager George Lewis told stewards that Belle Elan, a filly, might have been sponged as she was breathing heavily out of her nostrils at the end of the race.

Previously charged with tampering with J. Sierfeld charged sponges were found in the nostrils of Odessa's Peide, and Caraval, the former the 11-5 favorite and the latter a 6-1-2 bet. Lewis also said he had evidence that two other horses in the same race, Seneschal and Whistling Dick, were tampered with.

Stewards declared that apparently only one horse in the race, Darby Dean, was not sponged.

The stewards made no announcement of their early investigation, but expressed consternation at how the tampering could get into all five stables entering horses in one particular race. There was no evidence of a betting coup, track officials said.

ALL-AMERICA BOXING will soon take over the center of the New England amateur ring stage. With the Golden Glove tournament completed, every simon pure glove wielder in this section of the country is looking forward to the first contests in the All-America diamond belt championships which will be held at the Arena on November 11.

There will be other trial contests on November 18 and 25 and on December 9, while the New England finals will be staged at the Garden on December 18, while the grand national finals, with amateur champions competing from every section of the United States will take place at the North Station sports palace on January 27.

President Herb Holm of the New England A. A. U., Frank Facey, Charley Gorman and Ben Levias of the Registration Committee, and Gene Driscoll, chairman of the boxing committee, will once more give their full co-operation to this tournament.

The Irish American A. C., with George Freeman director of its boxing department, will co-operate in the staging of this banner tournament.

TOMMY SULLIVAN

Open and Novice Classes in Trials

AS WAS TRUE in former years, there will be open and novice classes. Tom Kanaly says that for the opening set of trial bouts on November 11 there will be open bouts at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

There will be contests for novices at this show at 112, 126, 147 and 175 pounds. The novices will battle through the New England finals.

These novice classes give inexperienced youngsters a chance to display their ability, and also furnish the fans with some lively action.

I get as much kick watching two novice heavyweights toss leather as I do attending the average run of professional shows.

There will be additional open and novice classes at the subsequent trial shows.

In the past our New England boxers have made a splendid showing when they have reached the Eastern finals and the grand national finals.

Gene Tunney, who refereed one of the heavyweight bouts in the Eastern finals last year, told me that the New England amateur boxers rated with the best simon pures in the country.

Tommy Sullivan Displays Ring Class

TOMMY SULLIVAN of South Boston displayed an abundance of ring class as he won in the 175-pound class at the recent Golden Glove tournament. Sullivan will be back battling for honors in the All-America show, and he is confident he will win the national title.

Howard Thompson of West Newton, heavyweight winner in the Golden Glove tournament, will also compete as will be other new title holders, Tony Peppi, Boston, 112 pounds; Eddie DeAngelis, Revere, 118 pounds; Steve Kronis, Boston, 126 pounds; Steve Bomal, North Chelmsford, 135 pounds; Dave Andrews, Lowell, 147 pounds; Sal Cesario, Boston, 160 pounds.

Entries should be sent to Tom Kanaly, Boston Arena, St. Botolph St., Boston.

An age limit of 25 years has been established for this tournament. A boxer is considered 25 years of age until such time as he has celebrated his twenty-sixth birthday.

All-America! Here we come!

STOLE MAHAN FROM YALE

Compared to Haughton's power at Harvard, Adolph Hitler isn't entitled to even feature billing in European affairs.

Under Haughton, Harvard did plenty of subsidizing and proselytizing. Summer after summer, the cream of the prep school football stars could be contacted at Sid Curtis' camp at Squam Lake, N. H.

And, like the Canadian Mounties, the Harvard subsidizers and proselytizers got their man, during the Haughton regime. They staged a man hunt to recapture Eddie Mahan, finally snatching him off the Yale campus.

Harvard had winning football eleven, during the days of P. D. Haughton. And, therefore, the most influential alumni were behind "P. D." to a man.

Naturally, there were some non-conformists to the high handed methods used by Haughton, particularly after the details of his famous "Fight Day" were made public.

FURISTS TOOK OVER

So, immediately, Percy Haughton announced that he was going to Columbia, the dissenters felt the time was ripe for Harvard to change of football and once and for all do away with gridiron "dictators."

Lacking the authority of Percy Haughton, Bob Fisher, Arnie Horween, Eddie Casey and Dick Harlow, figuratively, tried to pierce up the threads with their hand-knives and while wringing hocking gloves. It just couldn't be done.

They knew the coaching game but they didn't have the proper tools to build winning machines.

Bill Bingham, possibly, has made mistakes at Harvard, but his duties would have been greatly simplified had he occupied his present position under P. D. Haughton. There's a victim of the purist movement, which has been gathering momentum and creating criticism for two decades.

There'll never be another Percy D. Haughton at Harvard. There, for, until such a time as Harvard comes right out in the open and goes after gridiron talent, the Crimson cannot expect anything but "sugar-bait" football eleven, regardless of who is coaching the varsity or who's the graduate manager.

MAT RESULTS

By the Associated Press
WORCESTER. — Lou Brouillard, 148, Worcester, threw Gus Johnson, 265, Minneapolis, Ed Don George, 225, Buffalo, defeated Fritz Schnobel, 215, Chicago, two straight falls.

"HOLLYWOOD TODAY," by Louella O. Parsons, noted filmland authority, appears regularly in the Boston Evening American.

American Ice Loop Opens With 3 Games

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (INS)—The American Hockey League, renamed and reorganized from last year's International-American League, opens on three fronts tonight, with Hershey invading Cleveland, Springfield playing at Philadelphia and Providence visiting New Haven.

Pittsburgh will start its season at Hershey on Saturday, while on Sunday, Buffalo, lone new entry which replaces Syracuse, will play host to Cleveland in its new $1,500,000 memorial stadium.

Brouillard Wins First Mat Bout

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 30 (INS)—Lou Brouillard, one-time world welterweight and middleweight champion titleholder, today recorded his venture into the wrestling circuit as successful.

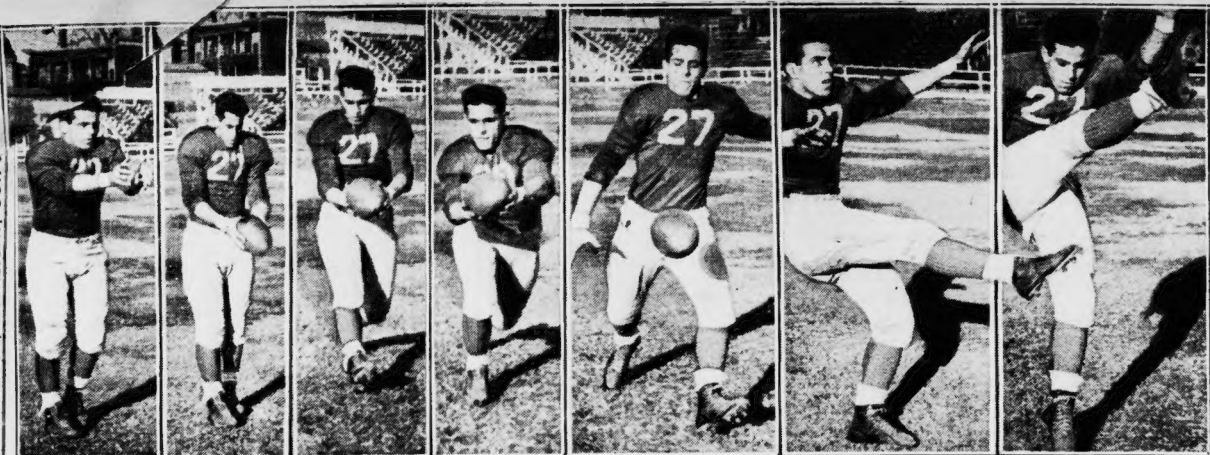

The 185-pound Worcester native pinned Gus Johnson, a 205-pounder from Minneapolis, with little effort.

Giants Pick Miami As Training Site

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (INS)—Miami has been chosen by the New York Giants for their 1941 training camp. Owner Horace Stoneham announced today. Manager Bill Terry approved the site after a personal inspection. The Giants trained last season at Winter Haven.

Gangway for Gansett

HE'S THE TOPS—Bill De Rosa, Everett captain, is caught by Magic Eye Camera in process of getting away from one of his long punts. De Rosa's punting helped Everett to its victory over last week, and propelled it further along the road to state championship.

Hockey Season Opens, Shoremen Tilt Philly

While football followers are talking about mid-season games and die-hard baseball fans still are rehashing the World Series, hockey makes its appearance tonight with the opening of the American League season, according to the Associated Press.

This circuit, from whose name "International" was dropped last month in recognition of the fact that it hasn't had a Canadian member for five seasons, gets a three-day start on the National League, although several clubs still are looking for players from major league teams to complete their rosters.

TINY THOMPSON PILOT

Besides the name, there has been one other major change since this Providence Reds beat the Pittsburgh Hornets in the final playoffs last spring.

The Buffalo Bisons, who dropped out of the old International League in 1936 before it combined with the Canadian-American, have returned to replace the Syracuse Stars.

Buffalo will play its home games in the new $1,500,000 Memorial Stadium, and will be managed by Cecil (Tiny) Thompson, one of the greatest big-league goaltenders in his career with the Boston Bruins and the Detroit Red Wings.

SHORE'S CLUB IN ACTION

Buffalo will play in the league's western division with Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Hershey, Pa., and last year's sectional winner, Indianapolis, Providence, Philadelphia, New Haven and Eddie Shore's Springfield club will make up the eastern division.

Each team in both groups will play 56 games this season, with the four easterners engaging in an extra round-robin to balance the five-team western group.

The opening schedule tonight calls for Hershey to play at Cleveland, Springfield at Philadelphia and Providence at New Haven. Pittsburgh plays its first game at home Saturday against Hershey, while Buffalo opens Sunday against Cleveland.

Hunter's Moon IV Captures Cesarewitch

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 30 (AP)—French-bred Hunter's Moon IV won the Cesarewitch in an exciting race today when Jockey Gordon Richards got him to the front in time to nose out Sir Pomm and King Legend.

The winner, owned by Edward Esmond, paid 100 to 8. He carried 132 pounds. Fourteen ran.

After his victory it was disclosed that Richards recently had a narrow escape from German bombers when the car in which he was riding with his wife and other companions was attacked. The occupants took refuge in a ditch.

There is an old English adage which speaks of someone being "so lucky that he fell into a ditch and came up with the Cesarewitch winner."

B. C. SCOUT SAYS JASPERS ABLE TO TEST EAGLE ELEVEN

Just three days hence, at Alumni Field, the Boston College grid juggernaut, highest scoring eleven in the land, will get its first real test of the past three weeks.

There is little doubt that Herb Kopf's Manhattan Jaspers, sixth opponent on the 1940 Eagles schedule, will supply some rugged competition. Any team which can hold the undefeated, united Detroit University Titans 0-6 and just miss losing out the once defeated Duquesne Ducks (6-10) is bound to be competent opposition.

Head Coach Frank Leahy, never one to overstate, feels that Manhattan will give Boston College a real first class workout.

"I hardly think that they'll defeat me (that's unusual optimism coming from Leahy) but I expect real opposition from the Jaspers," said Leahy this morning. "Ed McKeever (Eagle backfield coach), scouted Manhattan early in the season and again last week in Pittsburgh and he's amazed at the improvement shown by Kopf's team."

This afternoon Leahy ordered his varsity squad through a lengthy scrimmage—the equivalent of a full game. The first and second teams were used sparingly in the Idaho and St. Anselm games. Today's scrimmage was to be limited to a varsity member.

Through every member of the Boston College grid organization, from Head Coach Leahy right down the line can't get thoughts of the three "crucials" (Georgetown, Auburn, Holy Cross) which will close the Eagle grid season, the fact remains that neither Manhattan nor Boston University are being underrated. That's one reason Boston College is having such marvelous success this semester. The Leahys are from Missouri insofar as their opponents are concerned. Not until the actual encounters proved it did the Eagles put even Idaho or St. Anselm in the "soft" class. That's a sign of a real championship organization.

As the Eagles beat into the last half of their schedule the fight for first string status at a couple of positions begins all over again. At left end Henry "Hank" Woronick appeared to have that post tied up until Al Lukachik, senior letterman and place-kick artist, came back strongly to snatch starting honors against St. Anselm. Now Woronick and Lukachik are again locked for top honors and Saturday's start probably won't be named earlier than the eve of the contest.

At right tackle, big John Vachos, like Lukachik a senior, by his work in the St. Anselm game appears to have put a big ear in the pond marked first string. Discus Thrower Al Morro started the Idaho and St. A. games but "I" same honor will not be his when the whistle blows for the opening round of the Jasper game.

Behind Goal Posts

Harvard and Princeton meet this Saturday but those who saw the 1936 14-14 H-P battle swear there'll never be a more thrilling one. In six minutes the Harvard scrummers touched down, Captain Horwien plunging over to make it 7-0, lone score during the first half. But Captain Stan Kerk, a great tackle, spurred his Tigers in the third quarter by opening large holes for Garrity and Laurie to sail through. . . a surprise 40 yd. pass from Kerk to Laurie made it 7-7 and Kerk blocked a George Owen punt, paving the way to a second touchdown. . . Harvard bounced back, steered by Buell's passing, and late in the fourth period Buell spiraled a 30 yd. touchdown heave to Macomber. . . Harvard men went mad when Faxon kicked the tying point.

If more than one person submits perfect solutions, $100.00 will be awarded the tying contestant whose average score tabulations most nearly match actual average scores of the game. If no perfect list of solutions is entered $50.00 will be awarded to the contestant having the nearest tabulation submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the award. A prize of $25.00 will be awarded the person submitting the second largest number of correct solutions and should have two or more contestants tie for this prize, being contestant submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the prize. Fiance Called—Returning from Revere City Hall where they took out a license to wed, Ruth Weiss and her fiance, Irving Stiphner (whose picture she holds), learned that No. 158 (the bridegroom-to-be's numeral) was the first number drawn in the draft lottery. Now, Stiphner will march down the aisle and maybe off to camp.

Merrymakers—With the Boston American-Record-Sunday Advertiser playing host, 42 of Greater Boston's Honor Roll draftees (holders of No. 158) are tendered a party . . . and here, accompanied by showgirls, they toast their future in the Army at the Versailles Club.

Final Number—Last number in national lottery was called at 5:47 a. m. this morning, and holder of it is Edward J. White of Newton who was aroused at that time to hear the good news. Number is 2114.
